A Bigger Bank.
Lefty Grove's Blister.
Grandfather Mussolini.
Spanish Women Vote.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A BIGGER BANK is here, the National City of New York absorbing the Bank of America, in a merger amounting to $2,390,000,000.

The world's biggest banks are now the Chase National and the National City, which had already absorbed many banking concerns, including the important Farmers Loan and Trust Company.

The average man who sees that there is danger in some smaller banks, will be glad of the creation and enlargement of great banking units, with power and resources practically unlimited.

OF THE COUNTRY'S two greatest banks, the National City is run by Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board, a powerful personality. His president, Gordon Rentschler, is a young man with a smile like a spring rainbow, and back of that the ability to say yes or no quickly.

THE CHASE National Bank, still a few millions ahead of the National City, has for chairman of the executive committee Albert H. Wiggin. Its chairman of the board is Charles S. McCain, and its president Winthrop Aldrich, whose father was one of the ablest men in the United States Senate, and whose credit is not impaired by the fact that his brother-in-law is John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

THE CHASE National absorbed the Equitable Trust Company, as the National City absorbed the Farmers Loan and Trust Company.

From either you can get all the money you want, up to a hundred millions or more if you have the right collateral and enough of it.

THOUSANDS ARE up early, standing in line to get good seats for baseball games that will settle the 1931 championship of the United States.

Some of them perhaps would not have got up so early or stood in line so patiently to promote their own welfare.

One way NOT to get along is to pay more attention to what others are doing than to your own work.

It is no exaggeration to say that 1,000,000 men yesterday were more interested in a blister on "Lefty" Grove's "south paw" than in anything in their own careers.

MUSSOLINI IS a grandfather. His oldest child, Edda, now the Countess Ciano, has presented a baby boy to the world in far-off Shanghai, where her husband is Italian Charge d' Affaires. In addition to having a male grandchild, Mussolini has a daughter, Anna Maria, youngest of five, born two years ago. It would be very interesting if some astrologer or palmist could read the future of the Mussolini grandchild.

What will happen to him in his three score and ten? What will the world say of his marvelously energetic grandfather after Mussolini goes to join the other great characters produced by the Italian race?

SPAIN ALLOWS women to vote when they are 23 years of age or older. No other Spanish-speaking country has done thus. But why 23 years of age? Man is called "mentally of age" at 21.

The average girl at 18, a Spanish girl even younger, is as old as a man of 21. Hereafter the Spaniards in their revolutions, republics and monarchies will be compelled to ask:

"What do the women of Spain want?"

That is the most important result of female suffrage.

FRIENDLY SUGGESTION to the stock exchange: Stop short selling raids on values until better times come, and avoid regulation by the federal government that would not cease with better times.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader in the Senate, close friend of President Hoover, predicts:

"A thorough and searching investigation of this method (short selling) of dealing with stocks will be made by a Senate committee."

WALL STREET men say sincerely that short selling is a necessity, forming a "cushion" to absorb stocks as they fall. It also forms a sledge hammer to knock stocks down when otherwise they would not fall.

That, however, is not the question, which is:

"Will the stock exchange regulate itself, protecting the public against conspiracies of short selling, until these difficult times shall have passed, or will it wait for government regulation?"

It is a fact and the most ingenious broker cannot deny it, no matter what the stock exchange regulations may be, that when a broker buys stock for one customer who is on the "long" or optimistic side of the market, and lends that customer's stock to a "short" seller, intent on reducing prices, such a broker is betraying his customer, as treacherously as though a lawyer sold out his client to the other side.

That ought to be stopped, and it is quite safe to predict that action by the United States government will stop it if the stock exchange doesn't stop it voluntarily.

CLERGYMAN ATTACKS COUNTY JURISTS

Judicial 'Sympathy' With Political Organizations Denounced at Conference

By DR. C. T. MURDOCK
Special Correspondent.

INDIANA, Pa., Oct. 3.—A scathing attack on the judiciary of Allegheny County was delivered before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here today as Dr. Albert E. Day, of Christ Church, Pittsburgh, charged the judges with aiding political racketeering in the stealing of elections.

While the charge was delivered by Dr. Day, it was, in reality, the report of the Social Service Commission. In addition to the attack on the judiciary, it denounced, in vitriolic terms, birth control, the military system and the American Legion's recent vote favoring a referendum on prohibition.

The report was unanimously approved by the conference.

ALLEGED SUBSERVIENCY

In assailing the alleged subserviency of the judges to vote thiefs and politicians in general, Dr. Day said:

"We see that no matter how great the registration or the vote, the voice of the people at the polls can be smothered and their purpose to elect decent men to political office entirely thwarted.

"This wholesale theft of elections by a political machine, with which reputable citizens have not been in sympathy for years, assails the very foundations of democracy.

MACHINE 'FAVORED'

"When, therefore, in contests between a notorious machine and decent citizens, a judge repeatedly finds reasons to decide in favor of the machine, we are forced to the conclusion that the judge, beneath whatsoever legal phrases, he couches his opinion, seeks

FRANCIES RACE UNCERTAIN

Although he has taken out petitions for County Commissioner on the "Citizens' Party" ticket, County Treasurer John Francies shed but little light on his plans for the November election when interviewed at his home. All he said when asked if he will be a candidate was, Coolidge-like:

"I do not know that I will."

The fact remains that he has taken out the necessary papers. They must be filed not later than next Tuesday.

Disclosure yesterday that Francies had taken out nomination petitions renewed gossip that he would be paired with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern in the general election if McGovern failed to secure one of the Republican nominations.

MARION HUNDT, 3

WINDOW FALL KILLS GIRL, 3

Three-year-old Marion Hundt, of 1719 South Canal street, Sharpsburg, is dead from a fractured skull suffered when she fell from a second floor window in her home late yesterday.

Marion, weighing only 29 pounds, tugged at the window when it challenged her strength by holding fast, and it gave way, hurtling her to the brick alley 20 feet below. Her mother, Mrs. Henry Hundt, removed the screen from the window two days ago.

Mrs. C. J. Grimm, hearing the child scream, picked her up, while the mother, frozen with horror, stood by. Marion was taken to Dr. W. C. Dice by her uncle, Bernard R. Meyer, but she died less than three hours later. Mrs. Hundt had left the child a few minutes before the accident.

Chain Store Robber Escapes With $100

Just as he opened up for business this morning, L. W. Allison, manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company store, 1431 State street, Coraopolis, was confronted by an armed robber, and robbed of more than $100, according to the Coraopolis police. Allison was found in the rear of the store with his hands tied by a next door barber. The robber escaped in an automobile.

Suspect Shot in Prison By Slain Girl's Brother

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A moment after Miss Nell Williams, society girl, reaffirmed identification of a Negro held as the slayer of her sister and another girl in a mountain holdup, he was shot down in the jail by her brother, Dent Williams, 25.

The shooting came as a climax to an inquiry Assistant Solicitor J. M. Long was conducting at the Jefferson County Prison last night in the presence of members of the Williams family.

The Negro, Willie Peterson, 34, was in a critical condition today in a hospital. More than 100 members of the Birmingham units of the Alabama National Guard were mobilized against an emergency.

Peterson was arrested September 23, when Miss Williams pointed him out on the street as the Negro who held up her automobile August 4, shot her and fatally wounded her sister, Augusta, and a friend, Miss Jennie Wood.

Miss Williams had reiterated her identification of Peterson at the jail, when her brother whipped out a pistol and fired five times. Two of the shots took effect.

Williams was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to murder and later released under $1,000 bond. Before the conference officers searched all persons entering the jail, and Sheriff Hawkins said a gun was taken from Dent Williams. Roderick Beddow, attorney for Williams, said the young man had hidden the second gun in his waist band.

R.R. TUNNEL COLLAPSES AT SALINA

Large Section of Mile-Long Tube Crashes Few Minutes After Kiski Train Passes

AVONMORE, Pa., Oct. 3.—A few minutes after a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train had cleared the Salina tunnel, between Avonmore and Salina this morning a large section of the tunnel collapsed, blocking the two tracks and tying up traffic. No person was injured.

The early morning train from Pittsburgh, enroute to Blairsville, had just cleared the tunnel when the roof near the Salina end of the mile long tunnel collapsed, blocking all traffic.

Other trains were halted at both ends of the tunnel by workmen who discovered the huge pile of debris in the hole.

Workmen, it was said at Edmon, near the scene of the accident, discovered the collapse about 8 o'clock, shortly after the morning train had passed. This train had a number of passengers, and a large quantity of mail and baggage.

The fall occurred about 50 feet from the Salina end, near where a repair crew was working to shore a weak roof, it was reported.

After the fall, arrangements were made to transfer passengers around the tunnel, by using a freight track from Salina to Avonmore.

GIRL, MAN SLAIN IN ROADHOUSE

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A man and a woman were shot and killed and another seriously wounded by two gunmen early today at a roadhouse on the Mahanoy City-Tamaqua highway.

The two men entered the roadhouse and without warning began to fire their revolvers at the five or six persons in the room.

Frank Sedelia, 41, and Catherine Mates, 24, both of whom lived at the inn, were fatally wounded. Frank Morrow, 18, was shot twice and seriously wounded.

The gunmen fled and ran to their automobile, parked a short distance away.

The roadhouse is known as the "Cornfield Inn." State police said they were of the opinion the shootings were the result of "roadhouse warfare." Intense rivalry, they said, has developed among operators of roadhouses in the section.

Pennsylvania Trust Takes Over Bank

The Pennsylvania Trust Company today assumed control of the business of the V. DeLuca and Company, private bank, at 801 Wylie avenue. The action was taken on an order handed down in Common Pleas Court by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, upon the petition of V. DeLuca and Thomas G. Sessa, a partnership, owners of the bank. The bank had ordinary deposits of between $100,000 and $125,000.

SERIES RIVALS GO TO PHILA.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

EN ROUTE EAST WITH WORLD SERIES SPECIAL.—Oct. 3.—Passing through Pittsburgh this morning, the Philadelphia Athletics' special train headed for Philadelphia, where the team and its rival, the St. Louis Cardinals, will rest until the world series is renewed Monday. The Athletics left immediately after yesterday's game in Sportsmans' Park, St. Louis, and were due to reach the Quaker City this afternoon. The Cardinals were due there later in the day.

The series was squared yesterday when "Wild Bill" Hallahan, Cardinal pitcher, held the Athletics to three hits to win a mound duel from George Earnshaw, 2 to 0, in the second game. The Athletics had copped the first, 6 to 2.

The Mackmen continued to be on the long end of the betting odds, and were still favored to retain the world championship, although the front put forward by the National Leaguers yesterday gave them a greater confidence than they had previously enjoyed.

Gunmen in Auto Fire on Sleuth's North Side Home

Shots fired from a heavy caliber revolver early today crashed into the home of Precinct Detective Jacob Isler at 3329 Brighton road, North Side, showering Fred Isler, a son, 21, with plaster as he stood in the kitchen of his home preparing a meal. An automobile containing several men was seen to drive away from in front of the Isler home immediately after the shooting.

One bullet crashed through the front living room window and into the wall separating the living room and kitchen. Plaster fell on the son who was standing by the stove. Another bullet struck the brick wall under the living room window and fell to the porch and a third went through the screen door.

DEATH PLOT SEEN

OLD RIVALS IN STADIUM CLASH

Carnegie Making First Home Appearance; Pitt in Iowa; Dukes Defeat Oglethorpe

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

With Pitt playing the Hawkeyes out in Iowa-way City, Ia., this afternoon and the Dukes having attended to their business of nosing out Oglethorpe University's Stormy Petrels at Forbes Field last night, Carnegie Tech and Wash.-Jeff, those two old rivals, have the local football field all to themselves this afternoon for their skirmish on the Stadium turf.

The battle marks Tech's first appearance of the season at home and it is likely to be jammed full of tough football and anything but the sort of a romp the Pitt Panthers had on the same gridiron as they made their 61-0 bow against Miami University, of Ohio, last Saturday, while Tech was playing raggedly to down Buffalo at Buffalo 25-0, and the Wash-Jeffians were winning, 14-0, over West Virginia Wesleyan in their only game of the season at home.

These Tech and W. & J. teams go into their fray today on a toss-up basis. The Presidents are supposed to be gradually climbing back to their oldtime strength and glory, following a slump, while Tech, truth to tell, doesn't have so much in the way of material this fall and its prospects look best when viewed through rose-tinted glasses. The Plaid will have the old fight and perhaps a little

COLLEGE BOY HELD AS THIEF

A 17-year-old prowler, said to be a former student of the University of Wisconsin, walked into the arms of two policemen early today as he emerged from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Levy at 6327 Monitor street, where he is said to have obtained $17.

At Squirrel Hill Police Station the youth said he was Harold Bandell, 17, of 6352 Morrowfield avenue. He told police that he had entered another dwelling at Shady avenue and Monitor street, a short time earlier, but had obtained nothing.

Police were summoned by S. Boyd, of 6330 Monitor street, who said he had seen a man entering the Levy home. Patrolman John M. Nugent and Edward J. Sweeney responding. As they walked up the driveway into the home, Bandell emerged. His shoes, which he had removed, were found on the front porch.

During the robbery and capture of the youthful prowler, the Levys slept undisturbed. Awakened by the officers, Levy discovered his loss.

Pope Asks Distress Relief In New Encyclical

ROME, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Pope Pius today issued a moving encyclical to all bishops appealing for the relief of distressed peoples in all countries affected by the economic depression, and especially urging world-wide reduction in armaments as one remedy for the situation.

His Holiness pointed out that in nearly every country the economic depression has had the most serious and in some cases dangerous results. Therefore, the encyclical read, he was addressing "a warm appeal to all responsible for the welfare of the populations, asking them to do their utmost to alleviate the misery of the poor, especially in the matter of the care of children."

Turning to the question of disarmament, in which Pope Pius has displayed the greatest interest, the encyclical said:

"Certainly one remedy in this difficult situation would be the reduction of armament expenditures."

The encyclical concluded with an appeal to all bishops of the church to exert pressure to bring about such an end.

JOBLESS RIOTERS LOOT GLASGOW SHOPS; MANY INJURED

POLICE CHARGE MOBS; 100 JAILED

Crowds Mill in Streets; Battle Officers, Carry Off Supplies of Food

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The most vindictive rioting and looting in years, extending intermittently over two nights and a day, came to a climax early today when police swept the streets clean and restored order.

Resuming about 8:30 last night the battle between jobless men demonstrating against dole reductions and the forces of the law raged more than six hours. An undetermined number of the rioters and several police were injured and upwards of 100 arrests were made.

The melee began when police charged a body of about 100 men who were holding a manifestation outside the jail in which John McGovern, Labor M. P. and his lieutenants were being held for Thursday night's outbreak. Almost simultaneously trouble started in the Gallowgate, Glasgow Cross and other sections of the city.

As fast as the demonstrators were driven off the main streets they darted into alleys and formed for renewed attacks. Throughout the night and early hours they broke into countless shops and carried away great stocks of food and other merchandise. The damage was estimated at thousands of pounds and the loss in foodstuffs was considered incalculable.

Labor Constituents Again Repudiate MacDonald

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Repudiated again by his constituents, Prime Minister MacDonald returned to London today to resume the task of drafting a tariff platform on which he can appeal to the electorate in a general election the latter part of the month.

For an hour last night he talked to delegates of the Seaham Harbor Labor party at Horden in an effort to win their approval of his leadership of the national government. When he had finished Secretary Coxon of the Seaham Harbor executive issued a statement saying: "The position of the party is that it proceeds with the previous decision to secure another candidate."

I. C. C. GETS RAIL MERGER PLEA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—four eastern trunk line railroads today laid before the interstate commerce commission their plan of consolidating eastern railroads into four systems instead of five as originally proposed by the commission.

The four systems would be made up principally as follows:

Baltimore and Ohio as at present, to which would be added the Ann Arbor, Atlantic City, Buffalo and Susquehanna, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, Jersey Central, Reading, Western Maryland, Chicago and Alton, Monon and Lehigh and Hudson River.

Chesapeake and Ohio as at present, which has absorbed the Hocking Valley, to which would be added the Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette, Illinois, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Lehigh Valley.

Pennsylvania as at present, to which would be added Long Island, West Jersey and Seashore, Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, Wabash and Norfolk and Western.

New York Central as at present, to which would be added the Lackawanna, Ulster and Delaware and New York, Ontario and Western.

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—John W. Simmons willingly surrendered the witness chair at the trial of his wife, Carrie Barrett Simmons, alleged poisoner of her two daughters, Jean and Virginia.

Simmons was plied with questions for nearly six hours concerning events on Sunday, June 21, when the two girls ate sandwiches prepared by their mother for a picnic here and were made fatally ill by poison. The state charges the poison was placed in the food by Mrs. Simmons. Simmons denied knowledge of the poison.

Lamont, Urging Faith, Stresses U. S. Strength

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The "underlying soundness of the American situation" was stressed by Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., in a speech discussing business and employment, published today. He said:

"We have clearly in sight the elements of business and industrial recovery. It remains for the community to utilize these elements. Our people must regain confidence in themselves, in the underlying strength of our American institutions."

He criticized rumor mongers who predict misfortune "that never will happen," continuing:

"Many persons ignore completely the underlying soundness of the American situation. No country in the world is blessed with so many natural resources as ours."

Lamont spoke at a meeting of 250 financiers and business leaders constituting the general committee of the emergency unemployment relief organization.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Clergy and laity of every religious denomination were summoned to the cause of unemployment relief today by President Hoover's national organization. Walter S. Gifford, relief director, and Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the committee to co-operate in this work, made a joint appeal in a letter to the clergy for assistance in unifying community efforts to relieve distress.

concealment of a personal sympathy with reactionary and shameless political practices and when seeking re-election should be repudiated at the polls and when on the bench should be given to understand that his decisions are carefully scrutinized by the moral intelligence of the community and that persistence in such a course warrants impeachment."

The report shifted its attack to the American Legion's overwhelming protest against prohibition made at its recent convention in Detroit, when Dr. Day read:

"Recent utterances of the American Legion causes us to wonder whether the organization has not strayed far from the purpose of its founding. The persistent agitation within its ranks in behalf of beer and light wines, seems unworthy of a group of men whose training for the ardors of war was carried on under the discipline of a prohibitory law which was enacted because of a nation-wide conviction that only a sober people can be efficient and that the manufacture and sale of drinks is a social and economic waste.

'NOBLER CAUSES'

"We believe that nobler causes than the official rehabilitation of John Barleycorn await the attention of patriotic citizens.

"We wish to remind the public that the recent convention in Detroit did not speak for the entire legion and that even the entire legion represents only a fraction of the men who answered their country's call in 1917.

"The legion movement for a referendum on prohibition, therefore, may deserve study as a contemporary social phenomenon, but is not even a slight indication that America has rejected the philosophy of the prohibition movement or is weary of the effort to enforce it."

The report also touched on the ills of the economic order, the insidious attempts to defame the apostles of social righteousness and the equalization of ministers' salaries.

MAN, STABBED, FOUND IN ROAD

William Benges, 46, of Main street, McDonald, is in a serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital suffering from stab wounds in his chest and Edward Bourdregnon, 66, of Champion mine, North Fayette Township, is in the county jail on a district attorney's detainer, pending an investigation of the stabbing.

Deputy Constable Frank Velper found Benges on a road near Sturgeon after he is said to have been stabbed in Bourdregnon's cabin yesterday afternoon. According to the Constable, Benges staggered from the cabin holding his chest and after inquiring directions to a hospital, collapsed. Bourdregnon, according to County Detective R. L. McMillen, who arrested him, denied that Benges had been in his home or that he had stabbed the victim.

ESTEP DEFENDS DE ROSA VOTE

Congressman Harry A. Estep continued today to examine witnesses before Referee Garnet R. Speer representing Quarter Sessions Court, to sustain his position that fraud and irregularities were not practiced in the Fifth District of the Twelfth Ward. That contest apparently gave the nomination for Alderman to Estep's client, Michael DeRosa, Jr., over the incumbent, W. A. Means, represented by Attorney Hymen Schlesinger.

Estep took up the defense yesterday after Referee Speer denied the former's motion to dismiss the petition submitted in behalf of Means. Estep submitted that the contestant had not proved allegations of fraud, violence at the polling place, that violations of the election laws were permitted, or that legal procedure was not followed in granting assistance when requested by voters.

Yesterday, Estep called members of the election board who testified that the polls were opened and closed at the legal time and that the only ones that voted after closing time were those admitted before the doors were closed. On cross-examination the witnesses declared they only permitted voters to receive assistance after physical or mental disability had been attested on oath.

VOTE MACHINE FAILURE BARED IN CLAIRTON

Senate Inquiry Develops Only Minor Adjustments To Apparatus Needed

Ballots were substituted for voting machines in Clairton last primary day although most of the machines worked satisfactorily with minor adjustments, the Senate committee investigating voting machines developed last night.

Judges of election and city officials in Clairton testified before Senators Frank J. Harris, chairman, and Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., sitting as a committee in the Clairton Council chamber.

Judges were unanimous in favoring voting machines, but asked for more demonstrators and more means of educating the public and the election boards.

The meeting there featured arguments between Attorney Ella Graubart, as a witness, and Attorney O. K. Eaton representing the Poole Engineering Company.

ATTORNEY TESTIFIES

Attorney Graubart was called after Mrs. Alberta Roland testified Thursday that the woman lawyer had discussed petitions being signed by club women. She refused to testify until Senator Howell, of Scranton, said he would subpena her.

She denied that she had asked the women at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A. to sign any petitions, asserting she had merely made an address, after which a woman listener volunteered to sign for a taxpayers' suit.

Mrs. Roland, who had promised to attend, was not present at yesterday's hearing.

Attorney Graubart also denied that she knew a taxpayers' suit filed by Francis Guthrie last winter was brought in behalf of the Jamestown Automatic Machine Company. She made the assertion in answer to a question by Attorney Eaton.

LAW CHANGE SOUGHT

Officials of the Pittsburgh Printing Company and the William G. Johnston Company, printers and stationers, today agreed with Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the Allegheny County Election Bureau, that it was a physical impossibility to have voting machine ballots printed in the time limits now authorized.

Cloonan told the County Commissioners, at their first full session yesterday since the primary election, that the use of voting machines throughout the city and county in the general election will be impossible until legislation amending the state election laws is passed.

County Commissioners late yesterday voted to limit the use of the machines election day to the three third-class cities and not more than the first 10 wards of the city. Paper ballots will be printed for every district as a safeguard.

Clay Sexton, dapper certified public accountant, today was found guilty of fraudulent conversion and conspiracy to withhold a fee of $4,500 which Sexton is alleged to have assigned Mrs. Vye S. Thompson, widow of Col. Joe Thompson, World War hero, and Mrs. Jean P. Dawson, his accusers.

Named in the same verdict returned by a jury before Judge W. A. McConnel, was A. E. Ford Barnes, Pittsburgh accountant, co-defendant. Sexton was found not guilty early this week of having obtained $100,000 from the socially prominent Patterson Heights women by fraud.

Society turned out en masse for the two trials, owing to the prominence of the defendants and plaintiffs. Both sides were represented by an array of high-price legal talent, probably the greatest array ever to argue a case in Beaver County.

at home. Had he been sitting in this chair he would have been in direct line of the bullet. Detective Isler and his wife, Edna, were asleep in a second floor front bedroom.

Standing on a corner about two blocks from the home was Jack Isler, another son. He was engaged in conversation with Patrolman Francis Donohue when the shooting occurred. They believed it to be the backfire of an automobile, and a car was seen to drive away from the Isler residence. They did not learn of the shooting until the son went home a short time later.

SEEKS REVENGE

Fred Isler went immediately to the second floor and notified his father, who called North Side police. The sleuth was unable to give any motive for the shooting. He said that there is a probability that it might have been done by some person he had helped to send to jail. Isler said:

"I don't know who did this, but I know that I will not rest until I get my hands on him."

HEARING SET IN PRIMARY VOTE PLOT

McGovern Petition Asking Forward Township Ballots Be Voided Up Tuesday

Judges James H. Gray and Elder W. Marshall, in charge of the Returning Board, today set 4 p. m. Tuesday as the time for a hearing on a petition filed by supporters of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern to have votes cast in the First District of Forward Township in the primary election declared invalid.

Evidence of fraud discovered in retabulation of ballots in the district, and the fact that the return sheet which should have been delivered to the Elections Bureau was "lost" for five days in the county commissioners' offices, prompted the McGovern petition.

'SEEK HIGHER-UPS'

The grand jury investigation today was well along in an effort to discover identity of the "master minds" directing the enrollment of "phantom voters" for the primary and general elections.

This was learned from the District Attorney's office as attaches studied new evidence to be presented to the jurors when they reconvene Monday.

When the jury quit its work for the week last night, it was hearing evidence relative to illegal and irregular assessments, the first step in the creation of a "phantom."

Three of the 18 persons indicted by the jury in its first action on Wednesday posted bond in the District Attorney's office yesterday. They were Ida Eisenberg, Earl Anderson and Gertrude Shannon, all members of the election board of the Ninth District of the Twentieth Ward.

Judges Suggest Probe In Nineteenth Ward

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today had the second direct recommendation to investigate evidence of fraud, uncovered through ballot box canvasses of the primary election return board, due to 147 ballots being thrown out in the commissionership race in the Sixteenth District, Nineteenth Ward.

With 693 districts reached to date, comparison between the official and unofficial returns showed:

Official—

Mansfield	McGovern	Coene	Armstrong
129,925	100,897	102,719	107,156

Unofficial—

Mansfield	McGovern	Coene	Armstrong
127,873	100,805	98,756	102,760

Judge's Decision Awaited On Wilmerding Vote

Action on the returns from the Fourth District of Wilmerding was awaited today as Judge James R. Macfarlane, sitting as head of the Recount Board, reviewed arguments presented him late yesterday for the nullification of the votes because of fraud.

Attorneys for County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern argued that because 258 phantom ballots were found when the votes from the district were recounted, and because of other evidence of fraud, the ballot should not be certified to the Return Board.

Lawyers representing Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong contended that the question of whether the ballots of the district should be certified depended entirely upon the court after it had heard evidence. Decision in the case should rest entirely upon an election count, Armstrong's attorneys said.

joyed life in this world and the world enjoyed him.

WHATEVER ELSE may be done in times of distress, it is important to keep people fed. You cannot argue with a hungry man.

In Glasgow, 50,000 men, rioting, broke open a store, seizing what they wanted.

John McGovern, a Labor member of Parliament, is accused of inciting riots.

Fortunately we have plenty of food in America, and can get more, and while we are set against anything like the dole, it is not likely that any considerable number would be allowed to go hungry, if willing to work.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, of the American Army, studying the French army maneuvers, was included in Paris motion pictures, and American pacifists rebuke him, saying he shouldn't do that, while they are trying to bring about world peace.

If Gen. MacArthur had appeared in the movies paying out American money to Europeans, that probably would have been all right.

100 FILE CLAIMS HERE TO HUGE BUCHANAN ESTATES

HEIRS SOUGHT FOR DIVISION OF WEALTH

McKeesport Woman Seeks To Prove Descent From Former President's Uncle

Two estates, one that of former President James Buchanan, native of Pennsylvania, the other that of his uncle, Thomas Buchanan, the latter said to be valued at $856,000,000, are sought by more than 100 persons, claiming to be heirs, who have communicated with the Missing Persons Bureau here.

The claims were filed with Michael Feeney, head of the bureau, in response to a newspaper notice he caused to be inserted at the request of James Buchanan, of 3651 Primrose street, Inglewood, Cal. Buchanan wrote that 99-year leases tying up the property having expired, a search was being made for heirs prior to a division of the estate. Claims arrived from Sioux City, Ia., from Columbus, O., and widely scattered sections of Pennsylvania.

McKEESPORT CLAIMANT

One of the claimants, Miss Henrietta Buchanan, has been asked by her California kinsman, she says, to receive and investigate claims to the President's estate, her own having been acknowledged. Her sister, Mrs. Ruby Buchanan Oatman of 4204 Walnut street, McKeesport, claims descent for herself and three sisters directly from wealthy Thomas Buchanan, uncle of the former President.

Thomas' estate, of which, she says, I. D. Buchanan, 86, a grocer, of Houston, Tex., is trustee, Mrs. Oatman values at $856,000,000, returns from leases of New York city property over the long period and from its final disposition. Some of this property she declares was in Times Square. The money in a trust fund, awaits division among heirs, Mrs. Oatman states.

THREE FUNDS

The California and New Jersey estates are products of the James Buchanan side of the family. There are many claimants to the three trust funds, Mrs. Oatman declares.

Among Pittsburgh claimants to the fortunes are Mrs. Thomas Burton, 15 Mansion street, Hazelwood; Morris B. Strosnider, 6527 Aylesboro avenue; Mrs. Bell Irwin, 6200 Penn avenue, as well as Kenneth Curry, Sr., and Kenneth Curry, Jr., both of Bessemer. All claim to have proof to direct descent from the family.

LINDYS RECOVER FROM SPILL

HANKOW, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh apparently had suffered no ill effects today from their ducking in the Yantze-Kiang River when their airplane capsized here while being lowered to the water from the British airplane carrier Hermes.

The Americans and their Chinese companion, Dr. P. Z. King, who was also thrown into the water, received emergency medical treatment to prevent any possible infection from the flood-swollen river.

One wing was broken by the plunge into the river, and the fuselage badly damaged, making further flights impossible until extensive repairs have been made.

Col. Lindbergh was offered the use of Chinese government airplanes in the event he wished to continue his flood survey.

ANOTHER SEEKS WENDEL RICHES

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A new claimant to the huge Wendel fortune has come to the fore in the person of L. D. George Stansbury, of Houston, Tex.

Arthur Garfield Hays, who with Samuel Untermyer represents all who can prove relationship in the fifth or sixth degree to Ella Wendel, asserted, however, that he has found no one nearer of kin than Miss Rosa Dew Stansbury, 74-year-old Vicksburg, Miss., claimant to the $75,000,000 Wendel fortune.

Counsel for the administrators of the Wendel estate consented to postponement of a Federal Court hearing on the temporary injunction asked by Miss Stansbury restraining probation of the Wendel will. The hearing will be held October 25.

Murder Confession Suspected as Hoax

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Oliver Sexson, deputy sheriff, said today he was all but convinced that Lowell Milton Bell's confession to the murder of Louise Teuber was a hoax.

The investigator gave his opinion upon returning the 16-year-old former sailor to the county jail here, after taking him to Black Mountain, where the pretty five-and-ten cent store clerk's nude body was found hanging April 10. En route to San Diego Bell recanted his story. He said he told it only "to get myself on the front page."

W. Va. Dentist Held On $10,000 Bond

RENO, Nev., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Bail for Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, Fairmont, W. Va., dentist, held for trial on a charge of murdering Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, Fairmont widow, has been set at $10,000. Andre's attorneys indicated he could not raise the amount.

Mrs. Hutchinson died after a fall from the dentist's automobile. Officers said he told them she "bounced" out of the machine.

Shot Kills Boy, 6; Declared Accident

KANE MYSTERY CLUES GUARDED

HAMPTON, Va., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Deputy Sheriff T. S. Curtis today carefully guarded the identity of two new witnesses who were expected to testify against Elisha Kent Kane, professor of languages, accused of drowning his wife.

Kane, who had been in Newport News, Va., had left for Kane, Pa., with his cousin, Attorney E. Kent Kane. He announced, before leaving by automobile, he did not intend to stop over either at Washington or Baltimore.

Mrs. E. Kent Kane was to leave Old Point Comfort, Va., today for her home in Bradford, Pa.

Curtis said the two new witnesses were most important, but he refused to indicate the nature of the testimony they would give.

Don Jaime, of Spain, Dies; Last Carlist Pretender

PARIS, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Don Jaime of Bourbon, last of the Carlist pretenders to the throne of Spain, died in exile last night after a heart attack. He was 61 and unmarried.

He was stricken while motoring to Chantilly with two of his associates and was brought back to his home in Paris. A priest and a physician were summoned and he died several hours later.

His death came only a week after it was announced that he and former King Alfonso, his distant cousin, had ended their lifelong rivalry and henceforth would labor together for "the salvation of Spain." Alfonso's associates emphasized that the recognition was a family affair and did not involve the rights to the throne.

Don Jaime was the son of Don Carlos, grandson of the first Carlist pretender, and of Princess Marguerite of Parma. His claims to the throne dated back to Ferdinand VII, who was succeeded by his daughter, Isabella. When she abdicated in favor of her son, Alfonso XII, the original Don Carlos asserted his pretensions as a brother of Ferdinand.

Alfonso is expected to attend the first mass in his honor. It is probable Don Jaime will be buried at Frohsboor, Austria, near Vienna, home of the Carlist pretenders.

LIPTON YACHT RACE BEQUEST REPORTED

Sportsman's Will Expected To Aid Any Britisher Challenging U. S. Craft

By J. K. SMITH
International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Despite his death, Sir Thomas Lipton's gallant bid for the America's cup, emblematic of international yacht racing supremacy, will continue.

Unless the multi millionaire tea magnate and sportsman executed a change in his will just prior to his death at the age of 81, International News Service learned, it set aside a substantial fund to assist any Britisher attempting to lift the "old mug" that eluded him for 31 years of trying.

CONFIDES IN FRIEND

A few months before his death, Sir Thomas confided to a friend that he had included in his will a clause enabling his contest for the America's cup to continue posthumously. He said then:

"If I were to die tomorrow, there will be enough money left behind to have another go at the cup."

Just how much Sir Thomas bequeathed as this last sporting gesture is a question. It is estimated, however, that his own five challenges for the elusive cup cost him in excess of $1,000,000 apiece.

BOATS TO BE SOLD

The Shamrock V, in which he made his last effort in 1930 to lift the America's cup and failed, will be sold, it was understood, together with his famous steam yacht Erin. It was expected an attempt would be made to sell them in the United States.

Handling of the tea magnate's estate is in the hands of his trustees, Lord Inverforth, Sir Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, and Col. Duncan O'Neil, Sir Thomas' yachting representative. All met with his lawyers at his London home today. Funeral rites for the famous sportsman will be held Wednesday in his native Glasgow, where he will be among the members of his family. He never married and had no living relatives.

JUDGE ACCUSED BY WOMAN HELD

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—William R. Sprague, 35, Judge of the Portsmouth Municipal Court, was arrested late yesterday on the strength of evidence in the trial of Mrs. Marguerite Clark Tidd, 25, former clerk of the court.

Mrs. Tidd, charged with embezzlement of $2,115, testified she had been friendly with Sprague and that he was responsible for shortages in her accounts.

Common Pleas Judge Russell McCurdy, hearing Mrs. Tidd's trial, ordered the arrest of Sprague after he admitted that he took money from the Municipal Court cash drawer and replaced it with his personal checks, some of which, bank officials testified, his balance would not cover. He was released under $10,000 bond.

YACHT WIDOW EXONERATES SUSPECTS

2,000 Mile Trip Goes For Naught As Mrs. Collings Clears Veterinary, Son

By CHARLES J. McGUIRK
International News Service.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Lillian Collings, on first sight of Dr. Leslie D'Myers Ritchie, the Stamford, Conn., veterinarian, and William Ritchie, his 23-year-old son, today immediately pronounced both innocent of any participation in the murder of her husband, Benjamin P. Collings, her own abduction and the piracy of the Collings cruiser Penguin, in Long Island Sound at midnight of September 9 last. The two Ritchies were freed early today.

Dr. Ritchie was beside himself with joy when he was returned to his cell. He chuckled:

"I knew she couldn't identify me. From what I read in the papers, the man that pulled that job must have been close to eight feet high and weighing about 400 pounds. I weigh 115 soaking wet."

WILTED FROM TRIP

The young widow's absolution of the two was staged in the small courtroom above the Daytona Police Station just as the clock in the station below struck a single stroke that registered 2:30 this morning. At 4:45 the widow, with the others of the party who had come so far long a train for home.

The identification test followed a 2,000-mile railroad journey begun at 11:30 Thursday night. It came almost three hours after Mrs. Collings, her sister-in-law, Miss Helen Collings, William J. Kelly, her personal attorney, and Fred J. Munder, assistant district attorney, of Suffolk County, New York, detrained at the East Coast Station, wilted and tired from their long journey.

Munder brought Mrs. Collings to the little platform. Her self-possession, so evident in the days of steady grilling, seemed stronger than ever. There came to those in the room the muffled beat of men, climbing the stairs. Munder said:

"Soon you will see several men, 10 or more. If, among them, you recognize either both of the men who murdered your husband, you will please say so."

Mrs. Collings did not speak. But her eyes left Munder and turned slowly to the two doors which open into the room from either side of the rear. The tramp of feet grew louder. Slowly a line of 10 men passed through the door into the room.

POINTS OUT RITCHIES

The line of men lengthened, moving slowly across the room and stood still. Munder asked:

"Do you recognize anybody?"

She said without hesitation:

"I recognize that man and that man."

The Ritchies, father and son, dressed in shirts and trousers, unshaven and grim-eyed, shuffled a pace forward at the order of the chief of police.

Munder asked:

"Who are they?"

She answered:

"They are the two men whose pictures were shown me by Mr. Kelly and you in Stamford and New York Thursday and Thursday night."

She was asked:

"Do you recognize either or both of them as the men who boarded the Penguin — who murdered your husband?"

She replied with emphasis:

"I do not. I never saw these men before. They are not the men who murdered my husband."

And the 2,000-mile journey had gone for nothing and the Collings murder mystery remained seemingly as unsolvable as ever.

Grand Jury Will Get Collings Murder Data

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Mrs. Lillian Collings, en route for home today following her trip to Daytona Beach, Fla., to confront two men who had been held for questioning in the pirate yacht murder of her husband, faces a new ordeal.

District Attorney Alexander O. Blue said he would lay all the known facts in the murder of Benjamin P. Collings before the grand jury of Suffolk County on October 19. He planned to call Mrs. Collings to testify. Blue declared he did not expect the grand jury to find murder indictments.

Blue explained why he invited so many cameramen to the recent Coroner's inquest that the little hearing room was cluttered and Mrs. Collings collapsed as flashlights went off every few minutes. He said it was a mild form of the "third degree."

Seeks Civil War Record For Father, Dead 50 Years

Too young to be officially enlisted or mustered out, a 12-year-old boy who saw service in the Civil War as a messenger to Gen. Hayes may have his name officially inscribed in the records of the Civil War 50 years after his death.

Burgess J. W. Johnson, of Springdale, has received a rusty identification tag, found near Fredericksburg, Va., bearing the name and regiment number of his father, Joseph Johnson.

Burgess Johnson, who has the musket, Bible and faded blue overcoat that his father carried through the war, said that his parent was a stowaway on a troop train leaving Pittsburgh in 1861.

Attempts were made to send him home, but he came to the attention of Gen. Alex B. Hayes, who allowed him to stay as a messenger. Some time later he became a drummer and served until the end of the war. Burgess Johnson is now attempting to have his father's name placed in the War Department's official records of the Civil War.

An invitation to extend the work of the Surplus for the Needy Committee to Uniontown and Monongahela has been issued by Judge J. W. Dawson, of Uniontown, and F. R. Colvin, of Monongahela, it was learned today.

Attorney Harry I. Miller, chairman, has been invited to address committee meetings in both places next week, and to lay the foundation for the operation of the project in those districts.

More than 90,000 cans of fruit and vegetables have already been prepared for the needy of the Pittsburgh district in the committee's canning factory on Spring Garden avenue, officials announced. Preparation of the products is going ahead each day, and employes of the factory are working 24-hour shifts, it was reported.

Further appeals for sugar and money contributions to purchase sugar were voiced today. All other necessary products have been donated, but sugar is still needed for further production of food for the needy of the district, according to James F. Quick, director.

ONE OF THE PRACTICE SESSIONS . . . THIS ONE AT CARRICK HIGH SCHOOL . . . IN THE FILMS AT PENN THIS WEEK

SCHOOL TEAMS SHOWN IN FILM

Recognizing the tremendously big interest in football in Pittsburgh, Mike Cullen of Loew's Penn sent out a cameraman early this week for action pictures of many of the local high school teams on the grid. These he assembled as a special reel into a Sun-Telegraph-Loew's Penn Theater Sports Review. It was put on at the Loew's Penn yesterday as a feature for the week and immediately created a lot of interest. It will remain in the program until next Friday.

Among the schools appearing in the Sports Review are Fifth Avenue, Schenley, Peabody, South, Langley, Carrick, Perry and Allegheny. Interesting plays and formations used by the local schools in practice are depicted accurately and exciting action is reproduced by the cameraman.

Public Should Shun Wall St. Family Battles

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

About that time Wall street stopped hollering wolf and took its medicine in a big spoon.

Have you watched the market lately? Every day stocks jump five points up and five down like a frog in a rubber boot.

That's because the brokers are taking their profits from the opposite side of the plate like a cat drinking cream.

Every day they skim off a little profit. It's a question of dog eat dog and the last one over the fence is a Chinaman.

That's why the daily fever chart of the street looks like the footprints of a sailor on ice skates.

The reason why the patient hasn't recovered months ago is because the doctors are drinking the medicine and shooting the pills at each other.

The public should be happy that it got out a year ago. And we advise it never to step into another one of those family quarrels where visitors are welcome.

We've learned our lesson. Let the dead past bury its margins.

PAIR ACCUSED IN PARDON FAKE

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 3.—Charged with extortion and conspiracy to defraud, Albert Sack, 24, and Benny Graziano, 35, both of Vandergrift, are in the County Jail at Greensburg. They are alleged to have accepted $200 in return for a promise to get a pardon for Joe Masteranno, one of the three men now serving terms in Western Penitentiary in connection with the robbing of Lawrence Wallhour, messenger for Vandergrift Savings and Trust Company of $75,000 in 1926.

Sack and Graziano, according to state police, wrote to Masteranno, saying Graziano was a lawyer and could get him a pardon and his old job back for $200, of which $100 was for the prosecutor and $100 for the Judge. On instructions from her husband, Mrs. Masteranno, a resident of Ridgway, gave the men the money. When Masteranno was not released he wrote to District Attorney Victor B. Bouton, demanding the reason. Charges against Graziano and Sack followed.

FILM MAKEUP -:- Dreams of Perfect Star Pleasant Illusions -:- IN THE THEATERS -:- News and Gossip About Stage and Screen

Meanwhile, Ernie Westmore Will Take Them as They Come

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.

After 10 years of correcting imperfect features with make-up, Ernie Westmore, R-K-O expert, yearns to find a feminine star with

The hair of Jean Harlow, the forehead of Dolores Del Rio, the eyes of Marlene Dietrich, the nose of Billie Dove, the mouth of Irene Dunne and the chin of Marion Davies.

Jean Harlow

Or it would make life brighter if he could discover a masculine star with The hair of Gilbert Roland, the forehead of Clarke Gable, the eyes of Ricardo Cortez, the nose of John Barrymore, the mouth of Ronald Colman and the chin of Richard Dix.

These things being impossible, he would be content even if all stars presented as few make-up problems as Irene Dunne and John Barrymore.

In the meanwhile, he'll take them as they come.

LATEST GOSSIP

Houston Branch had an odd experience. He was writing a story for Warners about an island where there was no extradition. For sake of authenticity, he wired the department of justice asking if such a place existed. The answer came the other night, in the shape of two federal men who insisted on looking at all of Houston's papers. Finally they accepted his explanation and went away.

George Arliss

There is a young expert at United Artists named Jack Noves. In two weeks now Loretta Young leaves Hollywood on her first trip to New York. She was born in Salt Lake City and came to Los Angeles at the age of 8. The farthest East she has been is Denver, which she visited with her now ex-husband, Grant Withers. . . . Forest Stanley, whom you haven't heard of for some time, is making a picture at Universal. When George Arliss passes through Washington, he will be a guest of President Hoover. . . . Larry Tibbett goes the old wheeze one better and practices singing in his out-door pool. It's the truth. Director Lloyd Bacon has peddled his yacht and now goes in for polo. . . . John Drinkwater is submitting a new play to Uncle Carl Laemmle.

IN VALENTINO'S SHOES

Hollywood has asked many times, "Who will fill Valentino's shoes?" Oddly enough, an actor named Alfred Cordova has just accomplished this. Cast as the leader of a Russian vaudeville troupe, he reported to the wardrobe department at Fox for a costume. All efforts, however, failed to discover one. As the "Delicious" company needed the actor right away, a rush order was sent to the Western Costume Company. The search came to a dramatic end when they finally unearthed the Russian uniform Rudolph Valentino wore in "The Eagle." It fit, boots and all, and Cordova will wear it in the picture.

Joe Hiller's Show Boat To Open Tonight

The reopening of the Show Boat, pleasure craft in the Allegheny River at Sixth street and Duquesne way, has been set for tonight. It is under the personal direction of Joe Hiller. A special floor show will be staged, and a band of prominence will supply the dance music.

New Cantor Film to Be 'The Kid From Spain'

Eddie Cantor will make a second picture this season, to follow his "Palmy Days."

"The Kid from Spain" will be the title and it will be based on an original story by Cantor. Goldwyn is negotiating with a famous librettist and composer for collaboration.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 3.

These old big boys work fast and away ahead of time. Big bankers are coming down from New York daily to show President Hoover that the debt moratorium should be extended maybe a year maybe five years. They didn't know which but they were sure they should be cancelled entirely. In that way it would make it easier for them to collect the money that was owed them. Personally Mr. Hoover should have told 'em: "Boys I will cancel half they owe us if you will cancel half they owe you." That would have checked their philanthropy.

Yours, WILL.

Greensburg Drama

GREENSBURG, Oct. 3. The season of the Greensburg Little Theater Players will open November 17, when the initial production will be "You and I" by Philip Barry. It will be under the direction of C. V. Kirk. The Greensburg players use the system of a different director for each production, having a half dozen members well versed in stagecraft and direction.

The season's three plays will be chosen from "That Ferguson Family," "The Best People," "The Silver Cord," "Lady Windermere's Fan," "Let Us Be Gay," "The High Road," "O'Neil's Gold," "Houseparty" and "The Second Man."

As last year, Errol H. Derby heads the players as president. Don A. Snyder is vice president, Miss Martha Chambers treasurer and William A. Bush business manager. These officers and the following constitute the board of directors: Harold T. Ryan, Miss Betty Hunter, H. Raymond Mason, C. V. Kirk and Miss Margaret Vance. Kirk and Miss Vance are new members of the board.

A stagecraft laboratory also has become a possibility for the players this year.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Mr. Atkinson, the Times critic, called . . . Wants you, among other oracles, at the Harvard Club Friday at 1:30 p. m. for a luncheon in honor of Sidney Carroll, head of the London Critics' Circle . . . I tried to say you couldn't get up that early, but he hung up . . . The Broadway banks which stay open till 10:30 at night are considering closing down at 4 p. m. . . . Seems that it doesn't pay them anymore . . . Rudy Vallee called. Said your line about his clothes not fitting him in the show is all wet . . . That he only wears one ill-fitting suit in a scene because he is supposed to look like a hick . . . Eddie's wife told me a humorous story about Capt. Frank Hawks and his wife. Seems that the time-destroying flier had just flown in from some very far away place in about an hour . . . When he got to their apartment later she was weeping . . . "You make me sick," she said, "why don't you phone me every time you make a safe landing?" . . . Oh," groaned the human bullet, "what do you expect me to do—tell you every time I turn around?"

Did you know that Sawyer, the music critic on the Post, is a direct descendant of Adams, our second President? . . . And that Thornton Delehanty, of the same staff, is critic to the brother of George Washington? . . . You'd better square things with the Mrs. . . . She is furious because Gloria said you told her that there really isn't a Santa Claus and that Gloria said she always wondered how one man could go around the world in two days. . . . Are no secrets sacred to you? . . . Told Miss Wahl about the RKO office letter and it made her very happy.

Here's a little gossip about Max Reinhardt. . . . All Berlin is chattering about him and why he imported that ballet from that nearby country instead of using a German ballet. Seems that Herr Reinhardt had been favored with a quiet divorce in that Slav country (it was the only place he could get a divorce without having papers served on his wife), and it was in gratitude to that country that he is using their ballet for his "Schoene Helene."

What people over there are wondering about is whether his plans to make Helen Thimig a greater actress will turn out okay. . . . She's the new interest.

One critic of yours says he just found out why you are working for that hair-waving product on the radio. "Because they needed someone to put a crimp in women's hair, and nobody can get into a person's hair like you can."

Tilden and Richards clash for the last time tomorrow and Sunday at the Hamilton courts, Dyckman street, and they will appreciate your so reminding tennis fans. . . . Don't forget my check, please, plus $2.75 for incidentals, including carfare for the boy to place the proof under your door. . . . Did you hear anything about a change in editors on a theatrical rag? . . . The freshies are now using a new approach on girls: "Gee, baby, you look like you escaped from the cover of a magazine!" . . . Cat and Fiddle show is trying to bag Evelyn Laye. . . . Ran into Inez Courtney and Stanley Pascal. . . . They said to tell you that they won't wed until the depression ends, which means never, I suppose.

Just heard why Ethel Merman had trouble with arrangements of songs in "Scandals." . . . Johnny Green, who wrote so many hits, wanted something like $5,000 to arrange two songs, so what could a rich star like Ethel do? . . . Norma Terris will sing your favorite song from "Show Boat" on your broadcast Tuesday night. . . . Did you know some of your syndicated rags are using your broadcasts the same night (after the talk) or following morning? . . . They are paying the tolls, too. . . . Not a bad idea.

The daily Coolidge articles which were to have been revised on October 1, have been postponed because of the chilly reception. . . . George White is going to Honolulu. . . . Max Gordon may take Bing Crosby for a new show. . . . Remind me to tell you how a certain suddenly rich producer lost his millions and why. . . . He's broke now. . . . Sorry about Dudley. . . . After columnizing 25 years, too. . . . The melancholy Tommy Lyman is back at the 61 Club and wants you to call him. . . . Does he sing those torch songs as grand as ever? . . . If you look at the huge sign on the Gaiety Theater you'll notice the announcement of the new show. "Cherries Are Ripe" is half finished, and won't be. . . . The play won't come to town. . . . Jack Buchanan continues in his London show, although he is very ill. . . . Don't forget the Cotton Club new show, October 11. . . . Did you know it is against the law to repeat anything the President of the U. S. might tell you?

What Broadway columnist is anticipating a blessed event? . . . Don't run it that way—people will think you mean yourself. . . . That chap who was all doiled up in Reuben's the other night in a dress suit (with the gal in the flashy clothes) sells hats in a dept. store. . . . Harry Armand of the Safety Engineering Magazine is the grand-nephew of the last Austrian Empress and is related to Elissa Landi, too. . . . Ziegfeld went to Hollywood really to beg Marilyn Miller to try a show of his once again. . . . You should hear the way Connie Bennett talks to the Marquis. The way most Europeans talk to royalty these days.

There's talk about the Pulitzers re-entering the newspaper field. Herbert Pulitzer is waiting for the depression to be all over—and I don't mean all over town. . . . Here's a hot one. . . . That bank on the side street in the latter 40s had to complain to the police about the crowds watching the undraped burlesque girls in the stage entrance next door—seems that depositors thought there was a run on the bank.—R. C.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Strange Tale of the Jealous Mrs. Smith

BEFORE I begin this yarn, I'd like to tell you that the setting is a pretty familiar one. Seems to me that De Maupassant once wrote something like it, and I wouldn't be surprised if you told me that it has been published in several forms long before this. Harry Jans, who recently returned from Europe, told it to me the other night, however, and I liked it immensely.

Mrs. Smith was an extremely jealous woman. She had been married to her man for five years, and she had begun to suspect him as soon as the honeymoon was over.

She was clever enough not to let him know that she suspected him. Her little tricks and schemes for testing him revealed no small amount of ingenuity. She would have a girl friend call him at his office, for instance, and do her best to begin a flirtation. She would deliberately place him next to a pretty woman at dinner parties and then arrange to have them left alone in some spot where she could spy on them. Just a nice, trusting gal to have around the house.

Strange to relate, Mrs. Smith failed to find anything wrong. Five long years rolled by and the wife knew no more than when she started. Either Mr. Smith was a model husband, or he was too clever. At any rate, his wife could never get anything more than suspicions. And they don't pay off on those.

Maybe you've met women like Mrs. Smith. I know I have. For some strange reason, it becomes an obsession with them to catch the men they love in a wrong act. I never could learn the object unless they keep looking forward to a hysterical scene when the thing finally happens.

Enough of that, however. We come now to a day when Mr. and Mrs. Smith are supposed to attend a masquerade ball at the home of the McSwanks, on Long Island. It is to be one of the big events of the season, and both the husband and wife have been preparing for it for some time.

On the morning of the day in question, Mrs. Smith was suddenly seized with an idea. She still suspected her husband to a great extent. Something in her heart told her that he was a two-timing man. Wouldn't this masquerade ball be the greatest spot in the world to find out definitely?

The lady had read several stories about damsels who had fooled their boy friends at masquerade parties. Why not pounce upon that notion and use it for her own purposes?

She decided to go through with it. She sat herself down and thought long and carefully. And long before her husband arrived home to dress for the party, her plan was complete.

When Mr. Smith walked in, his wife was stretched out upon the sofa with a cold rag upon her pretty head. He rushed to her.

"What is it, darling?" he cried anxiously. "Are you ill?"

"It's my head, dear," she replied. "It's killing me. I feel terribly about it, but I don't think I'll be able to go to the McSwanks with you tonight. I don't feel in the mood for a masquerade ball."

"All right," was her husband's response, "then I won't go either. I'll stay home with you."

Mrs. Smith shook her head violently. This was the last thing she wanted.

"No, my darling," she told him bravely, "I wouldn't have you sacrifice your good time for anything in the world. You must go. It's only to pay your respects to the McSwanks."

She struggled to a sitting posture—and made it look as though she had just completed a climb of the Alps.

"Come, dear," she murmured. "I will help you into your costume. Then you will kiss me goodbye and run along. I will be content when I know that my boy is enjoying himself."

Her husband looked dubious.

"All right, love," he asserted. "I'll do whatever you think best. But I'd much rather be here with you."

"Liar," muttered Mrs. Smith to herself.

In due time, suitably attired in his costume and carrying the full mask that all guests had been ordered to wear, Mr. Smith climbed into his car. He kissed his wife fervently and told her he would rush home to her as soon as possible. She told him not to hurry and to enjoy himself. And off he went.

Twenty minutes later, Mrs. Smith was in a costume that her husband had never seen before. It was entirely different from the one she had planned to wear. Ten minutes more and she was stepping in a car she had hired for the occasion. And she, too, was driven in the direction of the McSwank home.

Once within the McSwank gates, the jealous lady followed the approved formula. Completely masked, she approached her husband and flirted with him outrageously. In a few minutes they were sitting in a secluded spot on the large estate.

"I don't know you," he whispered ardently, "but you are the very soul of romance. You are clutching at my very soul. I adore you."

"Go on, you wonderful man," murmured the wife. "Tell me more."

Her heart was pumping wildly. At last she was finding out what she wanted to know. So this was the way he made love to other women, eh? They clutched at his very soul, did they? Oh, the scoundrel!

Soon he grew bolder.

"Let us embrace," he cried excitedly. Without knowing who the other is, let us find love on this night of nights. I know you are beautiful. I sense it. Kiss me. You must kiss me."

Mrs. Smith yielded. Their lips met in a long and lingering caress. And, expert stage manager that I am, I hasten to ring down my curtain before I spoil my plot.

As soon as she could get away, the wife climbed into her machine and was driven back to her home. She hastily removed her costume and got into bed to await the return of her faithless husband. I need not tell you her feelings. She certainly had the old boy with the goods.

He came in. She tried to keep her voice calm. She asked him how he had enjoyed himself. Before going into the big dramatic climax for which she had been waiting so long, she decided to play for awhile.

And tell me, dear," she said sweetly, "how did the people like your costume?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I wanted to tell you about that, honey," he replied. "When I reached there I found that it didn't quite fit me. So I changed costumes with one of the boys from my office."

Woolsey-Wheeler Film Opens in Sheridan

Lindys Seen In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, shown in the Penn and other theaters, as they leave Japan on their way to China with stores of medical supplies for unfortunates in the flooded area. It was at the conclusion of this voyage that the Lindberghs were almost mobbed by the half-starved, frenzied Chinese who imagined they were bringing them food. At the Tokio naval airport in Japan a vast crowd gathers to bid the couple goodbye. There is a description of their trip by the Globe Trotter.

AERIAL NEWSBOY

The day of the aerial newsboy has arrived. In a most unusual picture, certainly the first of its kind ever made, a dirigible picks up copies of the New York Evening Journal from the top of the Journal Building, New York, and deposits them atop the Empire State Building, tallest structure ever built by man. It is all a part of the thirty-fifth birthday celebration of the New York Evening Journal. The papers are delivered to former Gov. Al Smith, waiting for them on the one hundred and third story of the building. Gov. Smith, "once a newsboy himself," compliments the Journal for its enterprise.

Again in this issue, Hearst Metrotone makes history by presenting the first air pictures ever made of Mt. McKinley in Alaska, the highest peak in North America. The airplane in which the motion picture cameraman, with his sound equipment, made the trip reached an altitude of 22,000 feet, or 1,700 feet higher than the mountain, the highest point ever reached by a motion picture cameraman. Immense glaciers come into view as the plane passes over icy ravines.

GREAT FOREST FIRE

Pictures of a great forest fire and the destruction of a vast lumber plant at Rapid City, S. D., are shown. There are scenes of the spectacular fire from the ground and from the air.

At the German naval school at Friedrichsort, youthful sailors are shown being put through lively acrobatic stunts.

A striking football picture shows how St. Mary's College of Oakland cleaned up their Southern California rivals to the tune of 13 to 7.

Thousands of cattle in Zululand are shown being given a chemical bath to rid them of ticks.

Tex Guinan Dance Group Coming to Town

Texas Guinan will bring her troupe of 20 dancing girls to the Motor Square Garden for one performance Wednesday night. The girls will present a typical Broadway night club revue, it is said. The Club Guinan Orchestra also will be present to look after the music.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Once In a Lifetime," coming Monday to the Alvin, includes among its roles that of a playwright. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, authors of this satire on Hollywood, have each played the part, Kaufman in New York and Hart in Los Angeles when a Pacific Coast company was organized. This play ran for nearly a year on Broadway last season, the only one initially played last year to make that grade. The original company of 40 will be seen here. Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are set aside for attendance of folks who sleep at night.

Small Timer says one of the gals i the chorus is so dumb she thinks gratitude means a pose, and then he wonders if she isn't right, after all.

The "East Wind" caravan of 13 cars, five of which were for baggage and scenery, departed from New York last night. Tuesday night the contents of these cars will be the substance of a world premiere of a new operetta. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will be devoted to final rehearsals in the Nixon, which is to be the arena of the new tune spectacle. Sigmund Romberg, the composer, Oscar Hammerstein, the librettist, and Frank Mandel, author and co-producer with Laurence Schwab, brought their wives along for the big doings. Messrs. Romberg, Hammerstein and Mandel, fed up on rehearsals of five weeks, had planned for a glimpse of the Tech-W. & J. football rumpus.

Small Timer says he hears from a friend in Hollywood that things are so quiet there that the actors are yawning and the yesmen are nodding.

"The Big Gamble" is the new feature on the Harris screen from today on. Bill Boyd and Dorothy Sebastian are the folks principally concerned in the action.

Small Timer says prohibition not only gives us liquor that costs more but so bad that many folks are almost tempted to quit drinking in disgust.

William Haines, whose new picture, "The New Adventure of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," will be in the Penn in another week, has arrived in New York for a little vacashe. Estelle Taylor is playing vaudeville engagements. Don Marquis, former columnist and playwright, is writing the dialogue for "Marcheta," in which Richard Dix will star. . . . Benny Rubin will play comedy lead in a "Girl Crazy" road company.

With Haines

Leila Hyams plays the feminine role in William Haines' starring film, "The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," coming to the screen of the Penn, Friday, October 9.

Deny Pickford Will Retire

Characterizing as "silly" a report that Mary Pickford is planning retirement from pictures, Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, has denied another of those fantastic rumors which have a way of springing up around "Our Mary."

According to the report, Miss Pickford was alleged to have remarked that she would make no more pictures for United Artists and that she may retire permanently from the screen. The same report, with certain variations, made its first appearance about 10 years ago, and Miss Pickford herself came to form the habit of ignoring it and continuing right on with her career. Indeed, since her first reported retirement she has made about 10 pictures.

Griffith Completes 'The Struggle'

David Wark Griffith has completed "shooting" of "The Struggle," co-starring Zita Johann and Hal Skelly.

Paris Murder Will Out At Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Nick Carter, Old Sleuth and Monsieur Lecocq were at the Penn Theater yesterday, taking a look at John Gilbert in his mystery play, "The Phantom of Paris." It is bloody murder, with the innocent man accused and convicted, but escaping just before he is guillotined. If he hadn't been an escape artist like Houdini, he would have been guillotined—and then there wouldn't have been any story.

George Seibel

It is a book by Gaston Leroux, "Cheri-Bibi," that has been turned into this thrilling film. Cheri-Bibi is the magician who laughs at handcuffs and gets out of a tank of water in two short minutes.

But it takes him four years to get out of the cellar where he has been hidden by his friend, the owner of the magical depot.

THAT'S A LONG TIME

Meanwhile all sorts of things have happened. The murderer has married the daughter of the murdered man, and the never-say-die detective, played by Lewis Stone, is still on the track of Cheri-Bibi. Leila Hyams, who loved Cheri-Bibi but has wedded the villain, now has a little son who buys magic toys in that same magical depot.

But murder will out, even in Paris.

As the villain is dying, Cheri-Bibi comes to extort a confession. But the villain dies before he has had the chance.

YOU MUSN'T TELL

You mustn't tell by what ingenious tricks the unfortunate Cheri-Bibi clears himself of the crime and wins the fair Leila Hyams after all. But Nick Carter, Old Sleuth and Monsieur Lecocq declare that John Gilbert is a credit to the magical fraternity as well as a deuce of a fine detective himself.

He's not much of an actor, but no actors are needed in this picture. Just villains and detectives. They produce bushels of suspense and yards of thrills.

And again they prove what the boy said when his mother found his finger-prints on the jampot: "They ain't no perfect crime!"

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Adding a piquant note to social news from time to time is a betrothal announcement. Next to a wedding, there's nothing more interesting than an engagement, don't you think?

Miss Cora R. Wells and her sister, Miss Alice M. Wells, of Shady avenue, are announcing an engagement today, that of their niece, Clara W. Taylor, to Donald M. Campbell, son of the D. M. Campbells, of Northumberland street. And the wedding will take place late in the fall.

This evening at 8 o'clock in the home of the Samuel Edgar Hares of Breading avenue, Ben Avon, their daughter Charlotte becomes the bride of William Bush Fleming, son of Mrs. W. H. Fleming of Springfield, Mo. The ceremony is taking place before an improvised altar of bamboo, crotons and cibotium ferns, supplemented by two seven-branch candelabra.

Evening Wedding

The bride is wearing a simple gown fashioned of ivory satin with a full court train, with touches of rose point lace. Her veil is of rose point, and her bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. She is wearing a rope of pearls a gift of the bridegroom.

Jean McLean Wible as the maid of honor is appearing in a gown of coral velvet and carrying an arm bouquet of Pernet roses. W. W. Gillett is serving as best man, and as ushers are Alvin W. Dorfield and S. Edgar Hare Jr., brother of the bride.

There will be a reception and dinner later, after which Mr. Fleming and his bride will leave on a southern motor trip, to be at home after October 20 in Coraopolis.

Miss Veronica M. Jones Marries C. P. Parrish, Jr.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Brown avenue, Turtle Creek, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Veronica M. Jones, to Charles P. Parrish, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Parrish, of Mills avenue, Braddock, which was solemnized at a nuptial mass in St. Coleman's Roman Catholic Church of Turtle Creek on September 24 at 9 o'clock in the morning. Officiating was the pastor, the Rev. John Shields.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and old lace, and a close-fitting hat of velvet. She carried an arm boquet of white bridal roses. Miss Esther Luther was the maid of honor, and wore orchid crepe with a matching hat and carried pink roses. Brendan Parrish was his brother's best man.

The wedding breakfast was served in the Parrish home, for the families, after which Mr. Parrish and his bride left on a motor trip to Washington and the South.

Plans for New Building Shown at College Club

Posters concerning the proposed new building were a part of the decorative scheme yesterday at the College Club's reception in honor of the new president, Mrs. J. Brooks Huff. Mrs. Huff, by the way, is probably the youngest president the College Club has ever had and certainly she is one of the youngest in the club world this season. She looked charming yesterday in a gown of black crepe with old lace. Her board of directors and several of the past presidents received with her.

The decorations were lovely. Mrs. S. K. Cunningham, Mrs. Alexander P. Lindsay and Mrs. J. Willard Anderson having brought their gardens in, as one of the members expressed it. Mrs. Randall E. Somers, Mrs. George Wilmer Martin and Mrs. Ray H. Finger, of the building committee, stationed themselves in the lounge, which proved one of the most popular spots of the afternoon, and there they explained the architecture and the plans for the new addition. There was music during the receiving hours by a trio composed of Miss Grace Bazell, violin; Miss Alice Thrall, piano, and David Bernardson, 'cello.

Dairy Council Gives Program at Congress

Two worthwhile features, both sponsored by the Pittsburgh District Dairy Council, constituted the program for the Congress of Clubs' home department meeting yesterday. The first feature was a talk on "Fortune Telling in Foods," by Miss Ethel Grace Gibson, who, by means of adjustable charts, showed how their diets affect the different peoples of the earth and what a correct diet of milk, whole grained cereals and fresh fruits and vegetables will do for the eater. Attention is paid to the diet of children, but there is need to be concerned over the diet of adults, Miss Gibson said.

The second feature was an ingenious playlet, "The Marriage Shop," in which men and women sought as husbands or wives were priced at their actual chemical value, the perfect specimen costing only 98 cents.

In the cast were Miss Grace Pollock, Miss Mary Boyd, Mrs. Arthur Day, Mrs. Thomas P. Otto, Miss Louise Borland, Maynard B. Abbott, Douglas Lewis, S. G. Fisher and Emil J. Roth.

Bellevue Outlook Club To Hear Trio at Lunch

A trio will furnish the music for the luncheon to be given Monday at the Congress of Clubs by the Bellevue Outlook Club, honoring the new president, Mrs. J. W. King. The trio is made up of Miss Gertrude Esser, cello; Miss Grace Bazell, violin, and Mrs. C. C. Crawford, piano.

Dorothy Gardner Is Married to J. W. Wilkes

On Thursday afternoon Miss Dorothy La Rue Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jay Gardner, became the bride of John William Wilkes, of Ben Avon Heights, in the Gardner home at 5 o'clock. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Robert F. Galbreath, before an altar of ferns and palms.

Miss Dorothy Kerr, of Bellevue, played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of beige satin edged with fur, and carried yellow roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Alexander V. Gilliland, of Bellevue, as matron of honor, wore brown chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of fall flowers. Dorsey Bennet, of Ben Avon, served as best man.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes left by motor for New York, to sail for Bermuda. After November 1 they will be at home in Oxford road, Ben Avon Heights.

Fredericka Griffith Weds H. McA. Feely, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Dorsey Griffith, of North Dithridge street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Fredericka Griffith, to Harry McAllister Feely, Jr., which was solemnized at a quiet ceremony yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Church of the Ascension, with the Rev. Drury Patchell officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, S. Dorsey Griffith, Jr., and her only attendant was Miss Joan Frances Renwick. Serving as best man was Eugene Feely.

After a southern honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Feely will be at home with the bride's parents.

The bride attended Maryland College for Women, and the bridegroom is a senior at the Engineering School of the University of Pittsburgh.

New Quarters of Dormont Century Crowded on First Program Meeting of Season

Dormont New Century's new clubhouse was crowded to the doors for the first program meeting of the season yesterday afternoon. The chief item of program fare was a pageant depicting the growth of the club movement written by three past presidents of the club, Mrs. Richard B. Perry, Mrs. E. E. Houghtelin and Mrs. Ross E. Taggart. Many of the lines were authentic, having been taken from the minutes of meetings represented in the four episodes and the costumes were in period for each of the four and early meeting of the Sorosis Club of New York, the first meeting of the General Federation, a reception given by the Chicago Woman's Club in 1893 and this year's biennial of the General Federation.

In this last episode a group of young girls from the International Institute represented the foreign federated groups. Mrs. Joseph Norbin staged the production and among the principals were Mrs. Clarence Scheck, who posed in tableau as the spirit of federated womanhood in the background of each episode; Mrs. F. B. Godard, Mrs. J. G. Moorhead, Mrs. H. D. Schmid, Mrs. W. E. Whitemore, Mrs. Walter Long, Mrs. H. A. Heck, Mrs. C. W. Elrick, Mrs. Eugene Elliott, Mrs. Norma Davy, Mrs. Ella Wedd, Mrs. G. D. Francisco, Mrs. W. C. Westwater, Mrs. Samuel Anderson, Mrs. C. J. Bowlus, Mrs. C. C. Paschedag, Mrs. Houghtelin and Mrs. E. L. Quinn. The club choral and Mrs. C. Warren Kinder furnished appropriate music.

Another unusual feature of the afternoon was the very fine presentation of the year book by Mrs. R. B. Perry, program chairman, who used a large replica of the brown and gold monogrammed book.

In the newsy, chatty two-page bulletin issued by the Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women's Club announcement is made of the monthly meeting to be held Tuesday in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. Miss Teresa Macauley, one of the members, will stage a fashion show with other members as models. Mrs. Janet Snyder, president of the club, goes as district chairman to the fall board meeting of the State B. P. W. in Harrisburg on the tenth, when Miss Marion McClench, national president, is to be the speaker.

Fashion Show

An inter-cities dinner meeting is scheduled for October 17, at Waynesburg. At this session the state president, Miss Helen Blair, and her predecessor, Dr. Mildred Rogers, will speak.

Another event on the Wilkinsburg calendar is a Food Craft Shop dinner on November 24, a benefit for the Wilkinsburg relief fund.

SMART WOMEN PREFER UTILITY CLOTHES FOR AUTUMN WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 3. — After women have listened to wordy plans to rehabilitate the world economically, they still affirm that the best tonic for personal and business depression is to order some new clothes. Thus of course disposing without further ado all arguments against such expenditures. But seriously, though, many women are really increasing their dress budgets, despite conditions, and the dress industry is being much helped thereby. But women are going in more for utility clothes and little dinner frocks than extravagantly luxurious evening frocks and ensembles, as there seems to be a feeling that entertainments will be simple and spontaneous this year, rather than of the lavish, carefully planned order. And so there is a tremendous interest in simple smart clothes that are cheerful looking and yet simple enough to be in keeping with the spirit of the times, without sacrificing one of their keen smartness—just what we should do.

LUCIEN LELONG has been showing some most attractive new ensembles in his latest collection. Like many other designers, he has been using many combinations of beige with brown, an always splendid color scheme for autumn. The drawing shows such an ensemble that makes use of dark brown, white beige, a successful color contrast. The coat is of dark brown, soft surfaced woolen. Shaved caracul, in a lighter shade, makes the extremely wide revers, standing collar, sleeves, pocket trimming and belt bow. The pockets are formed by appliqued, sloping pieces which stand off from the hips. And now for the dress, which is in beige crepe de chine, a nice choice for this most youthful and attractive model. There is an immense amount of handwork in the multitude of pin tucks. The skirt has tucked panels that are partway stitched and then released in pleated effect. The scarf is twisted and tied carelessly in front.

Walter Winchell has selected Norma Terris, stage celebrity, as his guest on WJAS next Tuesday night at 8:45 . . .

Gene Austin is due back October 12, 14 and 16 over CBS with his sentimental ballads and blue melodies . . .

Ted Weems' delivery truck, bearing all the orchestras' instruments, caught fire the other night on a trip from Dubuque to Guttenburg, Ia. . . . the instruments, valued at $15,000, were rescued but the boys still faced a difficulty of making their engagement on time . . . when the volunteer fire department in the village found out who they were they placed their hose cart at the boys' disposal and Ted Weems' Band arrived as per schedule.

The Thanksgiving Day game between Pitt and Nebraska will be broadcast by KDKA and the blue network instead of WCAE and the red network as originally announced. Bill Munday will be the announcer. WCAE will feed the red network of NBC with the Notre Dame-Tech game on Saturday, October 31, with Graham McNamee at the microphone . . .

Calvin Coolidge will speak from his home in Northampton, Mass., in that new feature over KDKA Tuesday night at 9:30, sponsored by the life insurance company of which he is a director.

3rd Death Results From Strike Riot

ESTEVAN, Sask., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Three more men have been arrested charged with rioting and one has died from bullet wounds as the possibility was seen of a settlement of the strike which has raged for nearly three weeks, in the Estevan coal fields. Negotiations under way may result in resumption of work Monday.

The death of Pete Markuni brought the total dead as a result of the riot to three.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Microphone overlords never tire of hailing the radio as "the world-wide voice of all nations, the promoter of peace among peoples."

It may be the world-wide voice of all nations, but the peace it has promoted so far is not much larger than a grain of Gandhi's salt. War clouds hover over various parts of the world and the broadcasters don't seem to be able to do a thing about it. In fact, they are not even interested.

Not until war appears closer to home will the radio men, we believe, regard the peace-promoting possibilities of the microphone as anything more than a fine, lofty topic for banquet speeches. And then it may be too late.

It is almost certain that the other emperors would have given scant consideration to the Balkan match box which set off the World War. It would have seemed too trifling to bother with. Not until it had spread to the great powers would they have rushed their apparatus to the lips of governmental heads in an attempt to stave it off.

And radio couldn't have staved it off. It would merely have been used as a mouthpiece through which blundering statesmen could state their case and assure humanity that God was on their side.

It is a beautiful generality this conception of radio as a peace promoter. It crops up often in print, just as it crops up often at the banquet table. Yet there have been evidences that the air monarchs were striving to make it a reality. You will recall they aired recently an appeal by German statesmen to the French people. And that radio appeal is followed now by the first huddle of French and German statesmen in Berlin since 1878.

* * *

The microphone of course could accomplish much toward dissipation war clouds were the right voices at hand. England, right now, seems best equipped with the right voices. At least they are emotional, eloquent, persuasive voices. And we have a notion they are voices that would swiftly be winged through the ether were war threatening, voices that in their appeal to reason would be heard above the din of munition factories.

BIG FIRMS HOLD GAS PRICE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—Since the appearance of 10-cent gasoline signs in the Los Angeles area, there has been little change in the situation. The so-called "bootleg" product is still being freely sold at 10 cents, running up to 12½ cents. The product of the major companies is still held at 16 cents, along with that of one or two of the larger independents, though obviously the big companies are suffering, for the time being at least, from substantial loss of gallonage.

The flurry in the trade caused by the appearance of the new brand "Blue Flash" gasoline recently, sold at Richfield Oil Company stations at prices from 10 cents upward, according to competitive conditions in any particular area, has subsided somewhat, though the implied threat that one of the larger companies was coming on the market with a third grade gasoline had the effect, though short-lived, of stiffening prices on the part of the independents and "bootleggers."

Stock Exchange Topics

Investment Liquidation Held Force Behind Stock Decline

The precipitate decline in United States Steel preferred during the last fortnight denotes quite undeniably that investment liquidation is the real force back of the downward movement of stock values. That stock yesterday broke another 4 points on top of a similar decline Thursday and in consequence sold at the lowest levels since 1922. Yet the investment position of Steel preferred has been materially enhanced in the interval since that time. In 1922, there was a funded debt of more than $500,000,000 ahead of the issue and 5,083,000 shares of common stock back of it, while today there is but $100,000,000 in mortgage debt ahead of the stock and more than 8,700,000 shares of stock following it. In other words, well over $400,000,000 in mortgage debt has been removed from its position ahead of Steel preferred.

One result of the market deflation has been to increase the number of issues in the low priced classification. An analysis of a recent trading day disclosed the information that approximately 46 per cent of the number of stocks dealt in consisted of issues selling for less than $10 a share.

Renewed weakness in the rails yesterday proved something of a keen disappointment to that part of the speculative fraternity which had recently been citing the performance of the carrier stocks as foreshadowing a turn in the market. Rail shares, it had been argued, have foreshadowed every intermediate swing in the market either up or down since the decline started in September, 1929. This group certainly led the list in its current phase of decline into new low territory with its break into new low ground long since confirmed by both industrials and utilities. Rails, however, had seemingly established their low on September 19 last and since that time had held consistently above the minimum until Thursday when they closed slightly under the mid-September low. The group participated in the yesterday's early rally but then weakened severely when the general list turned downward again.

According to interests close to United Biscuit, the company has been doing somewhat better than its competitors in recent months. Predictions in these quarters have indicated that results for the final half of this year may exceed the earnings of the first six months. For the entire year, the current dividend of $2 a share probably will be earned by a substantial margin. The stock has suffered during reactions.

The offerings which came into Consolidated Gas recently puzzled many market interests who had held that this stock would do comparatively better than other utilities during waves of selling. Discussions indicate the belief is general that the stock has been suffering from special liquidation which has been necessitous and was forced on the market when general conditions were not favorable for the absorption of the offerings.

Several weeks ago, it was the belief in responsible circles that the dividend on Columbian Carbon would not be changed, but in the past few days, the same quarters have admitted that a difference of opinion exists among members of the board of directors. The dividend will come up for consideration and action next Tuesday, when all the factors in the situation will be taken up before a decision is reached as to what the new rate shall be.

MOTOR RADIO SALES UP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Indications of the trend in demand for radio products are contained in a report just released by the Commerce Department. Data was furnished by 430 identical wholesale dealers in radio merchandise, which the bureau points out as a comparatively small number, but possibly indicative of trends toward an increase or decrease of stocks and sales in the second quarter as compared with the first quarter.

During the second quarter, when sales are normally lower than the first, the sale of automobile sets showed 100 per cent increase in value over the first quarter; the value of home talking picture machines sold was more than 14 times as large as in the first quarter and increased from three sets to 54. The only other item showing an increase in value of sales as compared with the first quarter was loud speakers not in sets, which gained more than 100 per cent. Stocks of television sets were reported for the first time, and six, valued at $1,170, were sold during the second quarter.

Nebraska Sugar Harvest to Start

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—The sugar beet harvest in Western Nebraska will begin on Monday, when 70 receiving stations will open. Six factories will begin operations on October 7, and will employ about 2,600 men. About 12,000 more men will be required to harvest the crop, which is the smallest in years. It is estimated farmers will be paid about $4,000,000 for their sugar beets.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

Tobacco Company Elects Officers

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—W. E. Waterman has been elected chairman of the board of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company, a new post, and James M. Porter was elected president. The elections followed the retirement of Luis Toro from the offices of president and director of the company. Mr. Toro has been head of the Porto Rican Company since its founding 30 years ago.

STOCKS OF OIL DECREASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, in a statement today, cited figures of the United States Bureau of Mines' petroleum statement for August as an indication of the industry's improved statistical position.

The bureau statement shows that 13,511,000 barrels of crude oil were withdrawn from stocks during August, 1931, as compared to withdrawals of only 3,274,000 barrels in August, 1930. Stocks of refined products fell off nearly 2,000,000 barrels, making total withdrawal from all stocks close to 16,000,000 barrels, the largest in one month in history.

Withdrawals of crude oil from storage during the first eight months of 1931 have totaled 30,350,000 barrels as compared with 6,134,000 barrels in the corresponding period of 1930. On January 1, 1930, crude stocks amounted to 428,445,000 barrels, while on September 1, 1930, they totaled 422,311,000 barrels, while on September 1, 1931, however, crude stocks amounted only to 378,326,000 barrels, representing a total decline of 50,119,000 barrels in 20 months.

Jersey Standard To Aid Employes

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Employes of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and subsidiaries who are members of the third stock acquisition plan of the company are given the privilege to borrow money on shares standing to their credit, but not to be delivered to them until the termination of the plan at the end of this year. This action is taken to relieve cases of distress.

WARNER'S FALL EARNINGS ON UPGRADE

Profit Likely for First Quarter of Fiscal Year; Weather Hit Last Period

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., began its current fiscal year on September 1 with indications that it has emerged from the period of deficit operations which has characterized its activities during the past year. It is considered likely that the current quarter to end November 30, next, will result in a profit.

Although a definite estimate of the loss to be shown for the three months ended August 31 last is not available, it appears probable in view of the hot weather in that period, lower theater attendance and depressed conditions in the film industry especially in June and July that the net loss for the period will be greater than that of $2,613,600 sustained in the preceding quarterly period ended May 30 last. The loss however is not likely to be as large as that of $4,625,000 recorded in the corresponding period a year ago.

9 MONTHS SHOWING

While a net profit of $1,576,421 was indicated for the three months to November 30, 1930, this was subject to write-down of inventories and accounts receivable of the radio and record division which write-down when subsequently made resulted in a loss being sustained from operations in the November period.

For the 39 weeks ended May 30, 1931, comprising the first nine months of the fiscal year, Warner Bros. reported a net loss of $4,324,738, after all charges, depreciation, etc., and the write-down of $3,073,368 for inventories and accounts receivable of radio and record departments.

NO BANK LOANS

It is understood that no further write-offs in this connection will be made in the August 31 or current quarter. In fiscal year ended August 31, 1930, net income was $7,074,621 after all charges, depreciation, etc., equal to $1.77 a common share.

Warner Bros. financial position is understood to be sound. Balance sheet as of August 31 last probably will reveal cash in excess of $4,000,000, which amount will be after payment on September 1 last of $1,200,000 interest on debentures and $99,000 of preferred dividends. The company has no bank loans and had none on August 31 last.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were few changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained steady, unchanged last week, but with slight changes in quotations.

The poultry markets remained steady, although fair supply adequate with slight change in quotations.

Cars of potatoes were received, one per car on track, arrivals included 10 cars cabbage, 11 cauliflower, 7 celery, 4 tomatoes, 1 onions, 4 apples, 2 oranges, 4 peaches, 2 pears, 2 grapes, 1 sweet potatoes, 1 mixed vegetables and 1 mixed fruits.

RETAIL TRADE MORE ACTIVE

More seasonal weather conditions have resulted in a stronger demand for women's and children's wearing apparel, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Retail trade is more active than it was although the dollar volume of trade still shows a material reduction when compared with previous years.

Fall market week sponsored by the larger wholesalers of the city has brought about 1,000 retail merchants here and considerable buying is resulting therefrom, although the results are not fully known as yet. The closing of several more outlying banks has not helped to restore confidence and cuts in salary continue to interfere with the buying power of the public.

The bituminous coal market shows no material improvement, production being still about 15 per cent lower than a year ago and demand in proportion. Collections continue to average slow, although a slight improvement has been reported in a few quarters.

POUND REACTS IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The tendency on the London stock market was easier today, with business extremely limited pending political developments.

A sharp reaction in sterling, with quotations on the dollar varying between 3.86 and 3.89, caused a setback in several gilt-edge stocks. The British war loan 5 per cents were down half a point to 97.

There was little change at the close and the tendency was dull in spots owing to the continued decline of sterling, which was attributed to the uncertain political situation.

Sugar Company Deposits Interest

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Announcing $175,000 had been deposited in Chicago for bond interest, the Holly Sugar Company has forecast an excellent tonnage and high sugar content for this year's sugar beet crop.

Bessemer Recalls 1,000 Shop Workers

The Greenville, Pa., shops of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad will recall about 1,000 men on October 12. Operations at the shop will be increased to about 67 per cent from 33 1-3 per cent as at present. All employes are expected to be given part-time employment.

INSULL LOWERS CHICAGO GAS

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Reduced gas rates will become effective in Chicago and the metropolitan area within two weeks, Samuel Insull, chairman of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company and of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, announced last night. The new mixture of natural and manufactured gas will be served consumers at the same time.

Mr. Insull said he would accept the new rates without contest since they were ordered Thursday by the Illinois Commerce Commission. Chicago consumers will receive a reduction of 6½ per cent for gas burned for domestic purposes, and a reduction of 31 per cent for gas used for heating purposes. Public Service patrons will receive a 5 per cent reduction in the domestic rate and 30 per cent in the house-heating rate.

NEW WIRE HELD FIREPROOF

Rubber insulated wire that will not carry flames—an improvement on present insulation adapted by the National Underwriters Laboratories—was tested yesterday by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith and pronounced a great step forward in safety appliances.

The test, conducted in Smith's office, was witnessed by several firemen and representatives of the National Electric Products Corporation of Pittsburgh.

Many fire losses, according to Chief Smith, are directly attributed to paraffined rubberized wire, which conducts flame.

Many fires, he continued, which are attributed to defective wiring cannot be proven because the evidence has been destroyed. With the new product, known as "Fire Stop" insulation wire, all this is eliminated. Tests by Chief Smith with fire showed the ordinary rubber wire carried flames while the other resisted a heat of more than 1200 degrees.

The tests were made in connection with the observance of National Fire Prevention Week, which starts Monday.

COLUMBIA, Ky., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Stating that "golf is for worn-out business men, not for Methodist preachers," Bishop W. F. EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Irregular — Local List Irregular

MARKET OPENS IRREGULARLY LOWER

Tobacco, Can and Steel Decline; N.Y.C. Advances; Standard of N. J. Steady

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Stocks opened irregularly lower today. American Can, American Tobacco "B" and Auburn Auto were down 1¼. American Telephone eased half a point and United States Steel was off ⅛. Atchison's decline was ¼. Lambert rallied 1¾. American Power and Light and New York Central rose ½. General Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey were unchanged.

Sterling exchange was down sharply, opening at $3.84, or 7 cents. The London Stock Market was dull.

Overnight news here included the $309,659,479 drop in New York Stock Exchange member loans to the smallest total in 10 years, and also the monthly review of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, which called the outward gold movement a "substantial step" toward redistributing America's excessive yellow metal reserve.

Some brokerage house commentators believed the market was ready for a sharp turn, although others felt an upward movement of any consequence or durability was improbable, in view of uncertainties still to be faced. It was agreed that a period of comparative price stability and dull trading would be most constructive, especially if the bond market proved able to throw off despondency.

Bank clearings this week are 33 per cent under a year ago. There is some gain over last week, largely because part of the month-end and quarterly settlements came in the current interval.

SEPTEMBER CAR SHIPMENTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Shipments of Auburn and Cord cars for September totaled 851, approximately double the September, 1930, total, President R. H. Faulkner, of the Auburn Automobile Company, announced. This makes cars shipped by Auburn the first nine months of 1931 aggregate 32,896, against total shipments for the 12 months of last year 13,693.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

GAIN IN WAGES YARDSTICK OF PROGRESS

Economic Advance Gauged By Real Not by Nominal Remuneration of Workmen

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Economic progress, with which reactionary business leaders at the moment seem little concerned, is measured by the advance in the real wages paid to workingmen.

Incidentally, the present process of currency depreciation in Great Britain and eight other important countries makes exceedingly practical the distinction between nominal money wages and real wages or purchasing power. The watering of the pound sterling to the extent of 20 per cent correspondingly cuts the real income of labor, if wage rates remain the same. Real wages are money wages in relation to the prevailing cost of living.

Mr. Rukeyser

LIVING COST FALLACY

One fallacy in current wage discussions is overemphasis on the decline in the cost of living. Workers who receive only part time employment, have been unable to realize the benefits of a falling price level.

Even though wage standards are always attacked during major economic depressions, they never fall as much as prices. As a matter of fact, when the cost of living is reduced, labor after temporary periods of unemployment, makes real advances.

ECONOMIST'S VIEWS

Discussing this subject from the standpoint of a hard boiled Wall street economist, Malcolm C. Rorty, investment trust consultant and former vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, said to me:

"It seems quite certain that we can have no real business recovery until business men can see some prospects of profits in new ventures, or in the expansion of existing activities. A real purchasing power of 90 per cent, with expanding activities, will butter more parsnips than a nominal purchasing power of 100 per cent, plus a continued depression.

"Experience has shown that wage adjustments to falling price levels do not need to follow the full decline in wholesale prices, or even the full decline in the cost of living."

Columbia Gas Profits to Cover New Dividend

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE REDUCTION OF THE DIVIDEND rate of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation from $2 to $1.50 a year brings payments down to the level of earnings. Officials believe that the organization will have no trouble in covering the new rate.

In the 12 months ended June 30, 1931, Columbia Gas earned $24,010,387. After deducting dividends on 986,612 shares of preferred stock, this was equivalent to $1.55 a share on 11,684,220 shares of common stock.

The decline in earnings from $29,868,604 or $2.06 a share in the preceding 12 months was attributable to reduced industrial demand for natural gas and to the fact that Columbia's recent additions to operating facilities have not had sufficient time to become self supporting.

Low Point Reached in April

THE LOW POINT for the depression in Columbia's business was reached in April. A moderate improvement has been shown since that time. Economies placed into effect will be apparent in future statements and should tend to keep Columbia's earnings above its new dividend rate.

Columbia will benefit from the completion of two of its major pipe lines projects this winter. The Panhandle Eastern pipe line extending from the Amarillo and Hugoton gas fields to the Illinois-Indiana state line has started to serve some of the communities along its right of way in Illinois. Columbia holds all the bonds, half the junior debt and half the common stock in this company.

The 20-inch line across Virginia and West Virginia from Kentucky to existing lines in Maryland and Eastern Pennsylvania is supplying gas to Washington and will extend its market further in coming months.

New Financing Expected

COLUMBIA GAS PROBABLY will do some additional financing when market conditions become favorable for the sale of new issues. Early this year $50,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures were sold to provide for expansion work. At present the company has about $37,000,000 in bank loans outstanding. These liabilities have been incurred to provide for the completion of the expansion program which has given Columbia the largest natural gas pipe line system in the world.

This indebtedness to banks will be replaced by funded indebtedness as soon as possible. The company appears to be conservatively capitalized and should have no difficulty in refinancing under normal market conditions.

Fixed charges of $10,650,711 including interest on subsidiary preferred stocks and earnings applicable to minority common stocks were earned more than three times in the 12 months ended June 30.

Increased Profit Expected

THROUGH ITS LARGE expenditures for new operating facilities Columbia has paved the way for supplying gas to a greatly increased territory. The depressed state of business has temporarily made these improvements a burden rather than a help to earnings, but as business returns to normal the company may be expected to report rapid gains in profits as its position in new consuming areas is consolidated and as the newly connected industrial load becomes apparent through higher operating rates.

Exports of Fruit Show Sharp Gain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—Exports of raisins, dried apples, apricots, peaches and prunes from the United States during the first eight months of 1931 totaled 233,668,324 pounds as compared with 137,437,251 pounds during the corresponding period of last year.

This 70 per cent increase the Commerce Department said was accounted for principally by prunes, which advanced from 62,749,457 pounds in 1930 to 133,174,574 pounds.

Chicago Mercantile Exchange Sales Up

CHICAGO, Oct. 3—Total sales of butter, eggs and potatoes on Chicago Mercantile Exchange during September were 6,654 cars, the largest recorded for any month this year, but were 594 cars below the 7,248 cars sold a year ago.

Total sales for the nine months were 40,105 cars, compared with 46,169 cars in the corresponding 1930 period. Of the nine months total this year, 16,811 cars were eggs, 18,970 cars were butter and 4,314 cars were potatoes.

Utility to Reduce Value on 'B' Stock

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—American Cities Power and Light Corporation has called a meeting of its Class B stockholders for October 16, to act upon a proposal to reduce the stated value of the Class B stock. If this reduction is approved, a portion of the surplus thus created may be used for the purchase of Class A stock deemed by the board to be favorable to the company.

Griffiths Elected Timken Roller Chief

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3—F. J. Griffiths, formerly chairman of the board of Central Alloy Steel Corporation has resigned to become president of the Timken Roller Bearing Company, subsidiary of Timken Steel and Tube Company. Mr. Griffiths also was recently president of Republican Research Corporation, a division of Republican Steel Corporation.

P. L. E. STORAGE METHODS NEW

Goods placed in the Central Warehouse of the P. & L. E. Railroad for long storage, awaiting distribution according to competitive demands, are kept free from dust by a unique method.

A vacuum suction system constantly in operation not only keeps the floors and walls dustless, but keeps cartons and boxes of stuff clean and fresh.

Officials believe this is a valuable service to patrons as well as to the retail merchants who receive the stock in as good condition as it left the factory.

DEMAND SLOW FOR GLASS

Start of the fourth quarter brings little or no change from the slow demand which has marked the flat glass industry for several weeks, according to American Glass Review. While there have been no substantial gains, there have been no decided decreases. Contrary to usual custom, demand is not on a sustained upgrade and is very sluggish.

For many years it has been the experience of the flat glass industry that the peak demand of the year for glass for building purposes would be reached in October and November. Demand usually strengthens late in August and rises steadily through September. This experience is not being repeated in this unusual year of 1931 and neither manufacturers nor distributors are certain of the future trend. In the meantime, they are holding production and stocks down and hoping that October and November will compare favorably with the balance of the year.

STEEL ACTIVITY TO FOLLOW PRECEDENT

Usual Year-End Decrease Will Be Followed by Sharp January Upturn

By B. E. V. LUTY

For a third week steel ingot production has been at about 28 per cent, playing out of some old orders being balanced by seasonal increases in requirements of some manufacturing consumers. Presumably there will be as usual a seasonal decrease in the late weeks of the year, with a sharp upturn just after January 1.

Ending of the third quarter prompts a review of the year by quarters in connection with financial statements of the steel companies. Total production of ingots was 8,000,000 tons in first quarter and 7,500,000 tons in second quarter while third quarter may be estimated at 5,250,000 tons and fourth quarter forecast at between 4,000,000 and 4,500,000 tons, making close to 25,000,000 tons for the year, five-eighths of 1930 and less than half of 1929, but in excess of any production before 1910.

EXPENSES CUT

There was 8 per cent decrease from first to second quarter and 28 to 29 per cent decrease from second to third while fourth quarter is likely to run 15 to 20 per cent under third. For third quarter the steel companies had the benefit of salary reductions and other economies while for fourth quarter they have the 10 per cent wage reduction, which will not count for much in the quarter but will be important for the succeeding quarter.

Following nine weeks of light lettings of fabricated structural steel contracts the last five weeks have shown an average of 75,000 tons a week or double the average weekly lettings in the year to date. Some of the jobs on books will require a long time for execution.

PRICES FIRM

Tonnage wages in the sheet and tin mills are on a sliding scale with bimonthly adjustment to prices received for sheets. There has been 25 per cent decline in the last eight years. In steel mill wages generally there has been only the 10 per cent reduction of October 1.

The wage reduction has not affected finished steel prices, which have been very firm, more so indeed than for many years as usually in good times there are some concessions on particularly favorable orders. Fabricated structural steel prices are perhaps less irregular.

TIN PLATE LOWER

A reduction of $5 a ton in tin plate effective October 1 is no reflection on the stability of steel prices generally as the tin plate price is commonly fixed annually and a reduction had become due from the price named one year before. The new price is $4.75, equal to the price in 1922 and otherwise the lowest since 1916.

Usually the tin plate price for the new season is set about the middle of November, but when there is to be a reduction, October 1 is the date dictated, as many can contracts are on a sliding scale basis, deliveries in a quarter being fixed by the tin plate price the first day of the quarter.

COACHES PUBLIC SPEAKERS

E. R. Moses, instructor of practical public speaking at Pittsburgh Academy, has heard a great many addresses before they were delivered to the audiences for which they were intended. Many of Pittsburgh's outstanding business and professional men and women have been coached by Dr. Moses for days or weeks before the "great day."

Dr. Moses believes that one of the best aids to leadership is to develop the art of self-expression. He says:

"You should not only be able to produce, but you should be able to sell. The first selling to be done is to sell yourself to your employer, to the public, or wherever you do business. When you are sold solidly to your employer, you need not worry about losing your job."

SERIES SHIFTS TO PHILLY

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Hallahan Averts Rout. Still Miss on Rules. Martin Stealing Show. | W. & J. Color Lasting. Hard Job for Pitt. Dukes Come Through.

WILD BILL GIVES CARDS EVEN CHANCE

BILL HALLAHAN was unable to put over his twentieth victory of the year before the National League season closed, being halted at 19, like Heinie Meine and Jumbo Elliott, but he kept it in pickle for an occasion when it would do his club a whole lot more good. It was No. 20 for the season that Hallahan delivered in shutting out the A's in the second game of the world series yesterday, and a more important conquest has never been chronicled in the early stages of the annual classic.

Bill Hallahan

It meant to the Cardinals and the National League the vast difference between being practically out of the series and having an equal chance to win it. Had that game gone the way of the first one and landed in the Athletics' locker, the series would now be as good as over. The Cards would have to win four out of the next five to take the title, and grabbing four out of five from the Mackmen is a trick that isn't done often. But as things stand, the series is deadlocked, and in a mathematical sense at least the Cards' chance to win out is just as good as that of their American League rivals.

IT WOULD HAVE been one of the crimes of derby history as well as one of the most freakish of all the odd happenings in baseball annals if Hallahan had lost his game and perhaps the series as well on a strikeout. That might have been the strange outcome if Max Bishop had stuck in a long hit after Jimmy Wilson's third-strike blunder, which forced Hallahan to retire four men instead of only three in the weird ninth inning.

With discussion centering on the mix-up at the finish, Hallahan's pitching has not come in for as much praise as it deserves. But as a matter of fact it was the item that saved the National League from another rout. Not even Pepper Martin's brilliant work on the offense would have availed anything if Hallahan had not turned in the super-pitching feat which must be credited to any hurler who holds Mack's sluggers scoreless.

IT WAS HALLAHAN, too, who registered the first National League victory last year after the A's had grabbed the opening pair of games. On that occasion also he let the Macks down without a run, and though he slipped in the sixth game he holds one of the best series pitching records of recent years in having blanked the White Elephants twice in three starts.

This is the first time since 1926 that the National League has been on even terms with the American after the second game of the series. In that year Grover Alexander won the second for the Cards after Herb Pennock had won the first for the Yankees. The Cards won that series, which may give National Leaguers hope in the present instance that history will repeat.

THERE USED TO be a saying in baseball that the average player knew less than anybody else about the rules of his own game. It may still apply, judging from the blunders in the ninth inning yesterday when Moore's third strike hit the ground before Wilson got it in his glove. Moore and the Cardinals who started to run off the field probably were confused over the rule that says the batter is out if a third strike is called on him while first base is occupied, whether the catcher holds the ball or not, or whether he gets it on the fly or off the ground. That rule operates only when there is none out or only one out. With two out, as was the case yesterday, the catcher must get the ball on the fly and hold it. Wilson, rated a smart catcher, made a worse blunder in throwing to third, with no chance for a force-out, when all that he had to do was throw to first and retire Moore or touch him with the ball.

Pepper Martin

PEPPER MARTIN, who is stealing the world series show as well as all the bases in sight, is being called a dark-horse hero in the title stakes, but he is no dark-horse to Pittsburgh fans. They picked him to crowd Taylor Douthit off the St. Louis club when they saw him perform in centerfield early this year, and they were convinced by his even better work later that he was destined to become one of the stars of the majors.

Martin is easily the outstanding regular of the series so far. In seven times up he has made five hits for an average of .714; two of his hits have been doubles; he has stolen three bases, and of the four runs made by the Cards in the first two games he scored two himself and knocked in another.

PREDICTIONS THAT THE Redbirds would be outpitched from the start have not been borne out to date. In the two games played Mack's terrific hitters have batted only .212 against the St. Louis pitchers and 17 of them have struck out.

On the other hand, far from being helpless before Grove and Earnshaw, the Cards have made a club batting average of .265 against the famous pair, besides stealing four bases on the peerless Cochrane against one for the A's on Wilson. Evidently they're not going down without a fight, even if they don't win out.

IT'S UNUSUAL TO see W. & J. here for what is only the second game of the Stadium football season, whereas the Presidents of old were wont to figure as one of the biggest of the November attractions. But the early date doesn't take any of the spice out of the Carnegie game today. W. & J. is W. & J. on any old date, one of the most popular of all the visiting teams, and always a guarantee of a real football game, full of color and fight.

Pitt is exploring unknown regions today in grappling with Iowa on the latter's own field. The strength of the Hawkeyes is rather indefinite on their reinstatement in the Big Ten. But that they're good enough to press the Panthers there is no doubt. It's a hard trip and a tough game for Pitt's second number, but there is every reason for the confidence that the Sutherlands will come out of it with a victory.

IN THE DEATH of Sir Thomas Lipton there passes on one of the greatest figures the sport world ever knew. No competitive pastime has ever boasted a finer, gamer sportsman or a more widely beloved contender than yachting loses in the passing of the famous Irish baronet.

At 80 he was still trying. Still losing, but refusing to give up. More than 30 years of his life and more than $10,000,000 were spent in a vain endeavor to lift the America's Cup, but defeat never feazed him. He always came back for more. Anybody can be a good winner, but Sir Thomas taught the world how to be a good loser.

Elmer Layden

ANOTHER STEP IN the progress that Elmer Layden is making in building up another winning team at Duquesne after losing nearly all of his 1930 material by graduation was chronicled in last night's 6-to-0 victory over the heavy eleven from Oglethorpe University. Two wins against Geneva and Oglethorpe and a most creditable showing against West Virginia must be termed a fine start in the first three games. Even though the Dukes did not uncover a lot last night, they did all that could have been reasonably expected against big odds in weight. It took real football to block the kick that opened the way for the only touchdown of the game, and it took real football also to hold the heavy Southerners in check throughout. The difference in Duquesne's favor in first downs and yardage gained leaves no doubt that the Bluffites won on their merits.

more precision in its play than last week, but it will need everything it can muster to hold its own with the Bill Amos-coached Little Washingtonians.

HEINZER IN LINE

Tech will have no less than a half-dozen men in its starting lineup who will be facing the music in a major game for the first time. This group includes Clyde Heinzer, who played guard on last year's plebe team, was converted into a sub fullback this fall and has to be shunted back into the line today because Tony Kebe, who was to take the place of Henry Dreshar, who was hurt against Buffalo, also is incapacitated.

Two starting appointments are in doubt. Stewart, last year's plebe captain, may get the call over Ostrosky, who started against Buffalo, at left end, with Lewis at right end. There is a chance that Ostrosky will sub for Lewis. O'Toole, former second-string center, may start at fullback in place of Pouney.

The only change in the W. & J. lineup from that which opposed Wesleyan last week is at right guard, where Massock replaces the injured Pife. The line includes such veteran players as McNeil at end, Demas at guard, Acting Capt. Rigney at center and a veteran backfield consists of Shaffer, at quarter; Zagray and Kaiser, at the halves, and Stew Wilson, the left-footed kicker, fullback.

W. & J. HEAVIER

The weight edge is with W. & J., and the Tartans were hoping for a fast, dry underfooting which would discount this disadvantage and at the same time would give its two speedy halfbacks, Capt. Armentrout and George Kavel, opportunities to break loose.

W. & J. long has been a Tech jinx opponent. The teams will be playing for the eighteenth time in the series dating back to 1906, and, of all of the 17 preceding games, the locals have won only three and tied two.

Kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock, and a crowd of 25,000 is anticipated.

Geneva College, at Beaver Falls, will command its share of patronage from the Western Pennsylvania sector, this afternoon when it slaps up against Bucknell College, the only team to defeat the Howard Harpster-coached Covenanters last year, and then by the decisive score of 46 to 6. Geneva will be out to avenge that trimming, and the battle should draw quite a turnout of the faithful.

MANY TILTS CARDED

Other games involving district teams include: Edinboro Teachers at Allegheny, California Teachers at Slippery Rock, Waynesburg, conqueror of Penn State a week ago, at Grove City; Adrian at Westminster, St. Vincent at Mt. St. Mary's, Thiel at St. Bonaventure, Marshall at Bethany, South Dakota State at Davis and Elkins, Indiana Teachers at Fairmont Teachers, Kiski at Navy Plebes, Keystone Academy at Bellefonte Academy, and Pitt Freshmen at Wyoming Seminary. The Tech and W. & J. freshman teams played at Taylor Allderdice High School Field this morning.

Two West Virginia teams battle on New York soil today. They are Coach Greasy Neale's West Virginia University Mountaineers, who play Fordham at the Polo Grounds, and West Virginia Wesleyan College, which does battle with New York University at the Yankee Stadium.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A LITTLE JAPANESE JUNK SAILED FROM JAPAN TO ROME—In 1613, the powerful chief of the Sedai Clan despatched two prominent Japanese Christians, Haseburu and Sotetee, to the Pope. They bore a letter from the Mikado Goe Jozei to Pope Paul V. This intrepid feat of navigation, from Nagaski, Japan, to Rome, Italy, was successful. It is recorded that the two Japanese envoys had an audience with the Pope November 30, 1615, and returned to Japan in 1620. A shipwrecked English sailor, Will Adams, who found his way to Japan in 1605, taught the Japanese how to build ocean-going junks which made this voyage possible. Due to his teachings, Japan was on the road to winning the mastery of the seas when foreign sailing was prohibited in the seventeenth century by the Shogun Hidetada. A LORD MAYOR OF BELFAST OF THE JEWISH FAITH—Sir Otto Jaffe, a member of the Jewish faith, was born 1846 in Hamburg, Germany, whence he came to Belfast in 1858. He was educated at Hamburg, Hollywood and Switzerland, and obtained his LL. D. degree at the Royal University of Ireland. He twice was Lord Mayor of Belfast (1899-1900, 1904-05) and high sheriff of Belfast in 1901. Sir Otto has had a distinguished career and has been the recipient of many high honors in the fields of education, civics and commerce. THE CHAMPION BRICKLAYER—Roy Swinford, of Ashmore, Ill., is considered a champion in his profession, and offers to prove it to anyone who doubts his ability. In August, 1931, he laid almost 100 bricks in a half minute and will lay a wager to anyone interested that he can put down 10,000 of them in a day's time—and that's an order of a carload.

ST. LOUIS SINGS BLUES—BAER

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—A weedbender from the whistle-stops of Oklahoma put the Bronx buzzer on the world champs.

His name is Martin and he takes to baseball like gravy to a spoon.

He scored all the runs that was and made Connie Mack celebrate his eightieth birthday 10 years in advance.

The game wound up in a spontaneous display of St. Looey Blues when Hallahan of the old Virginia Hallahans struck out William, who was batting for parties unknown.

The game was over, except that Wilson dropped the third strike and mashed the potatoes. The mob whistled like Prof. Shaw's morons and let out so many catcalls the Missouri mice started to swim the Mississippi River in terror.

But Bishop fouled out to Bottomley, who reached over into the grandstand and picked the ball out of a speculator's profits.

After the game Gabby Street said:

"My boys is so confident of winning the series that they are autographing each other."

Connie Mack was interviewed on the end of a broom and remarked:

"We just dropped this game so we would look pale and interesting."

The series moves on to Philly over the recently merged railroads. It's any man's series now and you can take your choice.

Before betting, we advise you that you can always do better at the cigar store around the corner. It doesn't make any difference what corner. There is always a bookie there.

St. Louis is now the biggest town in the world, unless our ears deceive us.

It was a very dark day and the only error made was when Hallahan threw the ball into Judge Landis' hair, thinking it was third base.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 3.—The football elevens of the Universities of Iowa and of Pittsburgh clash full tilt here this afternoon in one of the major early intersectional football encounters of the year.

The Panthers moved into this town this morning from Davenport, where they spent yesterday. The squad is in fine trim both physically and mentally, and there appears no good reason why Pitt shouldn't win by a decisive margin. Only the most rabid Hawkeye supporters are expecting the young Iowa eleven to hold the formidable array of Panthers in check. Those who profess to be in on the know are of the opinion that Pitt will win about as it pleases.

18,000 MAY ATTEND

This is Pitt's second invasion of Western Conference territory. Last year, the Panthers were defeated by Ohio State at Columbus, after having trimmed the

EN ROUTE EAST WITH WRITERS' SPECIAL TRAIN, Oct. 3.—A large part of the big world series show passed through Pittsburgh this morning with Philadelphia as the destination for the traveling hosts. Connie Mack's Athletics, defending baseball champions of the land, were in Pittsburgh quite early, they being due to land at the home port some time this afternoon. This train, carrying many journalists, rattled along in the wake of the American League stars, the writers expecting to reach the Quaker City this evening.

Gabby Street and his National League standard-bearers stayed near the home hearths last night, where they must have enjoyed the sweets of their spectacular triumph over their inter-league rivals. The Redbirds expect to get to Philadelphia tomorrow morning. Hostilities of the diamond will not be resumed until Monday afternoon, the third game of the titular set being set for that time at Shibe Park. Two scheduled rest days are a new innovation in series warfare, and the experiment is not hailed with joy in all quarters. The consensus of opinion argues that the games should not be drawn out in such a manner.

GRIPPING CONTEST

The Cardinals won the second battle yesterday at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, the 2-to-0 battle providing one of the most remarkable contests in the gripping history of the October classic.

The fight was loaded with fireworks, but the real drama came in the ninth inning after two were out, when Catcher Jimmy Wilson, of the Redbirds, became befuddled to such an extent he made a meaningless throw to third base when a throw to first would have ended the contest.

Confusion, the like of which has seldom been witnessed in any sportive event, followed the shocking play. Get this picture into your mind and you will have an idea of the wild scene.

The Cardinals, with Bill Hallahan pitching invincible ball, went into the ninth with two runs as against none accredited the enemy. Fighting hard, the Macks had runners on second and first when Manager Mack sent pinch hitter Moore to the plate in place of Pitcher George Earnshaw, who fought it out with Hallahan.

Moore had two strikes and two

LITTLE SERIES IS RESUMED

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Two right paws were selected by managers of the St. Paul and Rochester clubs today to hurl their respective clubs to victory in the third game of the little world series here.

William (Slim) Harris, elevated Saint mainstay, was selected by Manager A. P. Leifield to take the mound for the American Association champions. Bill Southworth, director of the destinies of the Rochester team, placed his faith in Ray Moss, former hurler for the St. Louis and Boston teams of the National League.

Both teams have grabbed off a victory in the all-important series from which will emerge the champion of the minor leagues. The Saints took the first encounter Wednesday, 4 to 0, while the International League title winners came back the following day to tie up the series with a 5-to-2 win.

SEALS WIN PENNANT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The San Francisco Seals today were the winners of the second half of the Pacific Coast League pennant chase. The Seals will meet Hollywood, winner of the first half, in a playoff series beginning next Tuesday.

SHADE BEATS JEBY

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Iwao Shade, California middleweight, outpointed Ernie Jeby, Brooklyn, in a 10-round contest here last night.

balls when he swung at a low curve. The batter missed the ball and Wilson came out of the low posture with the ball in his glove, but Jimmy had scooped the sphere and, to complete the play, Moore had to be touched or the ball had to be thrown to first base.

Meantime, Jimmy Foxx and Jimmy Dykes, the two base runners, had started to run on the crucial pitch. The bewildered Wilson, after making a pretty pickup of the ball, threw to Flowers and then the Cardinals started to leave their positions as if the battle were over.

UMPS UPHOLD A'S

Moore, the hitter, had given up and was walking toward his own bench when Capt. Eddie Collins, of the Athletics, left his third-base coaching position to make some wild gestures to Umpire Dick Nallin to the effect that Wilson had trapped the ball and the batter therefore was not out. Moore had been tipped off and he retraced his steps, the batter rushing to first base. A big wrangle ensued, but Umpire Nallin upheld Collins' contention that Moore was entitled to first base. This eventuality filled up the sacks, the winning tally being on first with Max Bishop up.

Courageous Bill Hallahan began to work on Bishop. Max pulled a high foul to the edge of the crowd that sat adjacent to first base and right field. Sunny Jim Bottomley saw nothing but that rocket as he charged to the spot where the ball was falling. Just as the ball hit his grasp he tumbled into the spectators, but Umpire Dolly Stark was standing within a dozen feet of the play and he waved out the batter for the last putout and the St. Louis fans and players broke out into a riot of joy.

PEPPER STEALS SHOW

Hallahan, Pepper Martin, Charley Gelbert and Bottomley were the heroes of the brilliant second battle. Martin stole the show. There is a ball hawk, who I have contended should have been in the big leagues for the past three years.

The records will show you that Pepper stole two bases—he actually swiped four sacks as he scored all the runs of the thrilling afternoon. Martin's double of the second that led to the first tally was a single by right, but the speedboy made clever Al Simmons hurry the play at second and, in doing so, he earned his two-sacker. Then he enacted a bare-faced steal of third base. It was a Frankie Carey play—that steal with one out, and Pepper tallied on Wilson's long liner to Haas.

CLOSE SQUEEZE PLAY

The fleet centerfielder pried off the seventh with a single to left and he outguessed the whole Mackian band as he swiped the middle bag. Pepper moved to third on Wilson's out and then followed one of the great plays of the series.

Gelbert put up the squeeze play and dumped the ball on the grass. The tap was a bit too straight and Earnshaw hustled for a play on the deer-footed Martin. The big pitcher's toss to Cochrane was a bit high, and Mickey was outstretched when Martin ploughed into him like Ken Strong hitting the Tech line. In the confusion Pepper was awarded the decision.

Hallahan allowed only three hits, he did not let an enemy runner reach base until two were out in the fourth, and there was not a safety recorded until Miller singled in the fifth. Binghamton Bill fanned seven of the Athletics. Earnshaw yielded only six hits and he whiffed five batters.

Hallahan was in a big jam in the fifth, the invaders filling up the sacks with one hit. Foxx opened with a walk and Bing Miller singled to right. Dykes advanced both with a sacrifice. Wilson went to the mound and gave Hallahan some instructions on Williams. Bill was not to make any pitch good, so Williams drew a pass that filled the sacks. The strategy looked like money when Earnshaw grounded into a double play.

Hallahan's sensational triumph was a reminder of his masterpiece of a year ago on the same grounds. Bill blanked the American Leaguers, 5 to 0, on that occasion.

MARTIN IN STAR ROLE—RUTH

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest-salaried Player

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—When a pitcher holds a team as helpless as Bill Hallahan held the A's yesterday there is not much more to the ball game.

Babe Ruth

The kind of ball the Cardinals' only lefthander pitched was the answer of the series being tied up, and I am more than ever convinced that Gabby Street's team is going to be tough to tame this year. I am still inclined to the belief that the A's will win, but they are going to have a harder fight than they had a year ago.

What I can't understand is why Hallahan does not win a lot more games during the regular season. I saw him shut out the Mackmen with seven hits in the 1930 series, and he was even more effective in the three-hit performance yesterday. He has pitched wonderful ball in two of the three series games. I have seen him in and I look to see him come back with another great performance before this series is over.

Make no mistake about this kid Pepper Martin. Everything he does seems to stamp him as the player who cannot miss being the hero of the series. He now has five hits to his credit, as well as three steals, and the series is only two days old. He has figured in three of the four runs which the Cardinals scored in the first two days, and he will be hard to stop in the coming games.

This victory will give the Cardinals renewed confidence, which must have suffered a little when they made 12 hits but could not win the ball game.

Vines, Perry Win In Coast Net Play

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Fred Perry, English net star, was still in the running today for the singles championship of the Pacific Coast, but he narrowly escaped being eliminated by Keith Gledhill. Santa Barbara Gledhill took the first set, 6-4, and was within two points of taking the second set when Perry rallied to win, 9-7. The Englishman then took the third set, 6-4. Ellsworth Vines, national champion, had but little trouble in disposing of Gordon Jason, 6-1, 6-0, in his quarter-final match.

A'S HAVE NO ALIBI, MACK DECLARES

By CONNIE MACK

Manager Philadelphia Athletics and owner of 8× world titles.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—The Athletics have no alibi for losing the second game of the world series yesterday for we were powerless before Southpaw Hallahan.

We had chances to win both in the fifth and ninth innings, but in neither case did Hallahan allow us the needed hit. In the fifth inning we had the bases full and only one out.

Connie Mack

Earnshaw was at bat and he has hit repeatedly in pinches during the pennant season, but yesterday he banged into a double play.

It looked as if we might win in the ninth when we again loaded the bases. We got quite a break in this inning, for with two runners on base Catcher Wilson dropped the third strike on Pinch-hitter Jim Moore and filled the bases.

In this situation Eddie Collins, our captain, displayed great head work, for he charged like a madcap to the plate and yelled to Moore to run to first. Moore did not know that the third strike had been muffed and he was turning to our bench thinking the game had ended when Collins told him to dust to first.

HALLAHAN HURLS WELL

That filled the bases, and a single from Bishop would have tied the score, or a long hit would have won the game. Bishop is a mighty safe man in such a situation, but this time he was retired when Jim Bottomley crashed into the box seats in right and caught his foul.

I have no excuses to make. We could marshal only three singles off Hallahan and when that bad you are going to lose.

Hallahan had a zippy fast pitch and mowed down our hitters as they came up. He was a trifle wild, and issued seven passes, but we could never hit him with men on bases. You must give him credit for pitching a whale of a game.

Pepper Martin was the lad who did the hitting and baserunning to beat us. He scored both of the St. Louis runs and each time had to make a steal to get to the plate.

Pepper doubled in the second inning with one down and hi-jacked third. Cochrane's throw was swift, but wide, and Dykes had no chance to tag his man. Then a long fly by Jimmy Wilson put him over the plate.

That one run was enough to win, as it turned out, but Pepper was there with another marker in the seventh.

My team played good ball, if they didn't hit. Al Simmons saved a lot of trouble when he made his one-handed catch on Frisch in the eighth inning. Al didn't hit, but I feel sure he will come back and be as troublesome as he was on the first day. Hitters like Simmons very seldom are checked as Hallahan held him today.

POSITION FAVORABLE TO A'S

When you look at the situation from a cold-blooded standpoint, we are in a most favorable position. I never hoped to do better than break even in St. Louis.

You must remember that we lost our first two games here last year and the series was deadlocked.

GARDEN SLATE COMPLETED

The card has been completed for the Frankie Bojarski-Lou Paluso show at Motor Square Garden Monday night with the signing of Carl Montebano, of Braddock, and Jimmy Moore, Negro, of the Hill, middleweights, to box the eight-round semi-final.

Fritzie Zivic, local amateur featherweight star, makes his professional debut against Al Reddinger, of the North Side, in the six-round second bout, and Young Chaney, formerly of Philadelphia and Chicago, makes his local bow against Johnny Warner, of Clairton, in the opener.

Paluso is due to arrive in town tomorrow morning.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantam weight, has begun training for his 10-round windup at McKeesport next Thursday night with Pinky Silvestro, of New York, who comes here with the record of having boxed Kid Chocolate, Midget Wolgast and Al Brown, all world champions, and Archie Bell, Black Bill, Johnny Cervantes and Willie LaMotte, among others. It figures to be a hot battle.

Lou Petrone will box Frankie Chatterton and Matty Gilbert will meet Joe Labona in 10-round bouts before Jack Harry's Club in Erie Monday night. Steve Simon hoses Lloyd Clements in a six-rounder and Larry Gikas engages Eddie Gainer in a four-round opener.

Reed Brown is back in the field of local managers with Tony Martini, of McKees port, under his wing. Marino is a brother of Tommy Ryan, a former leading bantamweight out of Duquesne.

A letter awaits Mike Jay, manager of boxers, at this office.

PITT PRIMED FOR IOWA

Buckeyes in Pittsburgh in '29. Iowa was only recently readmitted to the Big Ten after having been ousted for athletic irregularities. The Hawks lost 10 lettermen from last year's eleven, and have been seriously handicapped by pre-season injuries, which cost them their star center, Magnussen, just about wrecked the stellar guard, Ed Dolly, and has Coach Burt Ingwersen on the uneasy seat with regards to one or two other expectant regulars.

The contest is the first of the season for the Hawks, and ordinarily would draw a right sizable crowd, but because football fans in this territory are cognizant of Iowa's weakness and hold Pitt in such high esteem, and also because of the drain made on the sporting public by the world series, two or three bank crashes and the general rumored depression, a turnout of 18,000 will be thankfully received by all those concerned.

Bob Hogan, Paul Reider, Warren Heller and Jimmy Clark will compose the Pitt backfield.

LINE IS WEAK

Iowa boasts a backfield that is powerful enough to cause a lot of trouble if the line will only hold up. In Fullback Sansen, one of the best in the Big Ten; Blocking Halfbacker Kriz and Speed Boy Hickman, and Johnny Laws at quarter, the Hawks have a backfield that is formidable both on the attack and the defense.

Pitt will start with the same lineup that rapped Miami so viciously last week. Capt. Eddie Hirshberg and Rip Collins will go at the ends. They'll be opposed by Story and Fisher, for Iowa. Jim MacMurdo and Jess Quatse will start at the tackles, and likely finish, too, battling against two hefties, Rogers and Dee. Mike Milligan and Hart Morris are the Pitt guard choices pitted against Tompkins and Hantelmann, Hawkeye sophomores. Daugherty is to be over the ball at center for Pitt and Coach Ingwersen, of the Hawks, has shifted a guard star, Dolly, to the snapper-back post.

ATLANTA TEAM FIGHTS LOCALS TO STANDSTILL

Battled to a standstill by the heavier and hard-fighting Oglethorpe University eleven, of Atlanta, Ga., the Duquesne University gridders had to be satisfied with a 6-0 edge for their second victory of the season before a crowd of 5,000 at Forbes Field last night.

The only touchdown came late in the second period, and followed a well-placed punt out of bounds on the three-yard line, executed by Quarterback Red Sullivan, when a march was halted on the 25-yard line with about a yard to go for first down on the last try.

Anderson, Oglethorpe's kicker, went behind the goal line to punt out of danger on the next play and the ball was partially blocked and went almost straight up in the air and descended into the arms of Fullback Pawlina, of the Dukes, who ran back five yards to the five-yard line before he was stopped by Sypert, of the Southerners' secondary defense. A double pass, Trambley to Pawlina, gained a yard and then De Luca hit the line for two yards and then went through for the remaining two on the next play. Sullivan's try for point was wide.

VISITORS OUTPLAYED

Although they outplayed the visitors and deserved to win, the game was more or less of a nightmare for the Dukes, who were on the run with their narrow margin as the visitors staged a rally in the closing minutes which ended only when the home team took away the ball on downs on the four-yard line. Herrin, the star quarterback, who did not enter the game until just before this splurge, and Meyers were the stars in the advance.

The Dukes made 10 first downs against 7 for their opponents and gained a total of 171 yards on running plays against 126, and 53 against 9 on passes. These figures represent fairly well the difference in the teams and justify the closeness of the score. Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, started his shock troops and began to feed in his first-string men with the opening of the second period, the parade of substitutes continuing thereafter until the finish.

It was Oglethorpe's second defeat in as many starts. In its first game it lost, 12-7, to Chattanooga.

DUKES THREATEN FIRST

The Dukes were first to threaten, midway in the opening period, when a good return of a punt placed the ball on the Oglethorpe 37-yard line. A first down followed on the 25 and another, with the aid of a 15-yard penalty, on the seven, but here Oglethorpe stiffened, and the Dukes lost the ball on a pass over the goal line on final down. A 30-yard pass play, De Costa to Christina, put the ball on the 17-yard line for the Dukes as the period ended.

A fumble lost ground as the second quarter opened and finally Sullivan tried for a placement field goal with the ball scrimmaged on the 17-yard line and missed. Late in the session came the only score, as already described.

Late in the third quarter, Ciccone, the Dukes' center, blocked a kick and recovered the ball on the Oglethorpe 40-yard line, but it was lost on downs on the 27 as the period ended.

OGLETHORPE HOLDS

A 15-yard penalty for roughness put the Dukes in a scoring position on the 13-yard line early in the fourth period, but Oglethorpe held for downs on the three. Shortly afterward, Anderson intercepted a Duquesne pass, and, when the visitors punted, Trambley, of the Dukes, fumbled, and Goldsmith, a new end, playing with two broken fingers taped, recovered for his team on the Dukes' 18-yard line. This break was nullified when the Dukes pushed back the advances of the visitors to take away the ball on downs on the 28-yard line, only to see De Luca fumble on the next play and the alert Goldsmith recover again for his team on the 32.

Herrin galloped for seven yards on the next play and then Meyers romped through the line for 15 and first down on the 10. With time growing short, the Dukes fought with their backs to the wall and took away the ball on downs on the four-yard line and then stalled with three short line bucks to avoid losing the oval before the final whistle blew. The lineup:

Duquesne—6		Oglethorpe—0
Baker	L. E.	George
Venanzi	L. T.	Kenzie
Amman	L. G.	Patrick
Ciccone	C.	Mathew
Colin	R. G.	Whaley
Vicenti	R. T.	Barrow
Krakonta	R. E.	(C) Bryant
Dressler	Q.	Walker
Charko	L. H.	Mayfre
Christina (A. C.)	R. H.	Sipper
Zaphiriff	F.	Harrison

Touchdown—Deluca.
Missed point after touchdown—Sullivan (placement attempt).
Substitutes—Duquesne, DeCarbo, Ferrare, Trambley, Sullivan, Deluca, Sinko, Pawlina, Donohue, Ammon, Weinberg, Regel, Arrington, Powell, Reilly, Murphy, Barrett. Oglethorpe, Aderholt, Puthe, Anderson, Young, Pickard, Wrens, Baker, Stovall, Goldsmith, Herrin.

All Interested Glances at Girls Are Not Insults

Minta said the world wasn't safe for gals . . .

According to her, Big, Bad Boys waited on every corner to make passes at 'em, even though the maidens passed by with modestly downcast eyes, and never a thought of flirting.

"H u h!" snorts Charlotte. "That stuff is all in her imagination!"

"Dear Sally:

"I just read Minta's squawk about the men, and your reply about 'thinking insults and you'll get 'em.'

UNJUST ACCUSALS

"It usually isn't my way to 'butt in,' but this time you walked right into my kitchen. This article came along when I was just about fed up with a friend who seems to stop every man in his tracks to hear her tell it. Now she is no beauty as to face, and no Venus as to form, but I'll be darned if she doesn't kick every man she ever sits next to in a show or walks near on the street or in a crowd . . because he has 'insulted' her, she claims. She has accused more men than I can count, of trying to 'make' her. And you should see the look she gets from these men, when she starts making a fuss! First—innocent astonishment . . followed by fury when they realize she is accusing them.

"Once she told a man she would call an usher in a show, whereupon the man asked her pardon for not having heard her request that he move. To this she replied with a kick on the shins that would have done credit to a football game.

"The management, however, diplomatically asked her, not the man, to change seats, having had experience with her before, and therefore knowing her.

"Please, what on earth ails her? I wish you'd bawl her out, good and proper, and maybe save a very good friendship from going on the rocks. For while I like her, I can't stand much more of this sort of thing. It embarrasses me almost to tears every time we go out together and she pulls something like that. "CHARLOTTE."

FEELS IMPORTANT

What ails her? She's just Putting on an Act, Charlotte. Secretly, she knows she isn't pretty or popular, but she keeps telling herself that she is and acting the part. Bawling out some gent gives her a sense of importance . . . which is almost as good as really being a Red Hot Number. And I suspect that many of these outraged young women, who claim they've been "insulted," are staging the same act.

But here's a grand little kid who isn't. I'm hoping Minta sees her broadcast. It's good for what ails her.

"Dear Sally:

"I certainly got a kick out of Minta, who 'can't go down the street without getting insulted,' and out of your answer—"Think insults and you'll get insults!" There's a lot in that!

"I'm 23—fairly pretty, and sensible. That last helps a lot. I agree that if you're looking for insults you'll get them. And you'll probably think a lot of things are insults when they're not.

"I go steady with a wonderful fellow. I love him. I dress nicely and neatly. I am not a flirt. But naturally, when I dress up, there are others besides Mr. B. F. who notice me. I am sometimes spoken to . . . but I just keep on walking, and pay no attention.

"Do I feel insulted? I do not! I am glad to know that I do attract people, even if I don't pay attention to them. Conceited? No. I'm not. But I think it's good for the Boy Friend to know that others would like to know me.

"Generally, if a fellow tries to flirt, he'd like to be acquainted with the girl he tries to flirt with. Lots of times he's a stranger, and figures the only way he can get acquainted is to address some girl.

CAN DISCOURAGE FLIRTS

"Just walk along and keep your nose ahead of you, if you don't want to be bothered. Interest yourself in something besides thinking of his 'terrible nerve.' Just forget him. Will he continue to annoy you? I doubt it. People don't stick their fingers in a fire twice.

"I've seen girls walking along, head up, carrying a 'Don't you dare speak to me' air. And I've seen them made fun of and whistled at, because they did look like that. I've got a great big hunch that's the secret of this Minta person's troubles. Anybody who acts that way, whether pretty, or only funny looking, is pretty apt to get a lot of attention she won't like.

"My advice to Minta would be to forget herself and her terrible 'danger' and look and act human. And not to take a smile or a casual 'good morning' as an insult. Life's too short to be bothered. "BETTY."

Yes, Betty, we do usually find what we're looking for in this world . . .

And if we imagine that every interested glance is meant for a tom-cat leer, we can make ourselves plenty miserable.

But if we go along, pleasantly and happily, and pay no attention to flirts, waste no time fuming or fussing . . . we're pretty apt to be happy—and safe.

Get Child's Viewpoint

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

We are usually rather fair when it comes to judging the unusual act of an adult, but most of us haven't the power or wish to be as fair and understanding when it comes to children.

I think the root of the matter lies in the fact that we see adults as individuals while we persist in considering children as a mass of small persons, all of whom we expect to react always in the same manner.

Very early in life, a child manifests character traits which differ from those of even his own brothers or sisters. Yet (particularly when this occurs in one family) we seem to attempt to crush the more individual child back into the harness of conformity—usually conformity with the other members of the family.

I like Mr. Seabury's classification of trends in character as "wishes"—for all life is composed of wishes, isn't it? And when we realize that Billy evinces a strong "life-wish" and Jim a decided "herd-wish" we can begin to let go of the youngsters and allow them the freedom to develop, each along his own particular bent.

As I understand Mr. Seabury's definition, we who have the "life-wish" strong within us, always want things to happen; we want to go places and see things; we yearn to be a part of the big parade, not to be one of the mass of spectators on the sidewalk, watching the parade go by. We want to dig up buried treasure, to explore uncivilized lands, alone if necessary. Just being surrounded by breathing human beings doesn't mean so much to us.

The child or adult with the "herd-wish" strong within him likes crowds, likes social activities, dislikes being alone, and prefers team or "gang" activities to the individual achievement.

Each type is necessary in this world, and each should be allowed to seek his own environment. A gentle effort to make the solitary child take part in "herd" activities, and a gentle effort to teach the sociable child the pleasure of quiet house hours, won't come amiss but don't—because you have both a Billy and Jim in your immediate family—try to make them alike as two peas.

The world needs INDIVIDUALS. Let your child be himself. Therein lies his happiness and success and growth.

Get your child's viewpoint on life; what may seem happiness to you is not necessarily his idea of happiness.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Usher's Duty

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When two women attend a formal church wedding and there is only one usher at the door when they enter, should the young woman follow as the usher escorts the older woman to a seat, or should she wait until the usher returns and escorts her to her seat?

2. What would be the correct procedure if two older women were together? MISS J.

1. When there is only one usher at the door when two women enter, it is correct for the usher to offer his arm to the older woman, and for the younger woman to follow.

2. The usher offers his arm to one, and the other follows.

Rising on Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently I was introduced to a woman just a few years my senior, and she acknowledged the introduction. Was it proper to remain seated while I shook hands with her or should I have stood up?

2. Please advise me what is proper in the same instance when a gentleman is being introduced to a lady.

3. When leaving, this same couple again shook hands. Was it proper to remain seated then? G.

1. Since she shook hands with you, it would have been less awkward if you had stood up.

2. The lady remains seated.

3. Yes, but it would have been more gracious to rise.

Mitts at a Formal Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When attending a formal dinner dance, if silk mitts are worn, is it proper to wear the mitts during the dinner, or should they be taken off and then put on when starting to dance?

2. When attending a formal dinner dance, is it proper to wear a cocktail jacket to dinner? If it is, is it proper to remove it after dinner?

FAITHFUL MODERN.

1. They should be taken off while you are eating, and, if you wish, put on after dinner.

2. The jacket may be taken off before dinner, or after, if the dinner is not strictly a formal one which demands the formality of the evening dress without jacket.

Engagement Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a luncheon I attended a few months ago the hostess announced her engagement. I have never sent her a gift, but I intend to very soon. In doing so should I apologize for the delay? Would a note written on a calling card do to send her my best wishes, or would a note on letter-paper be better form? Also, what would you suggest saying in the note? B.

Indeed, B, it is not necessary for you to apologize for not sending a gift before, since engagement presents are not, by any means, taken for granted. Usually, as a matter of fact, nowadays the only people who give engagement presents are close relatives and the close friends; and even from them presents are not taken for granted. With the appallingly increasing demand on the budget of the average citizen, plans for wedding presents are about all we can do.

Anyway, if you send the gift, don't apologize for the delay. Enclose with the gift a short, friendly note of best wishes for her happiness. Say, too, how much you enjoyed the announcement party and how much you appreciated the honor of being included among the first hearers of the good news.

Household Hints

A strip of lemon peel boiled with old potatoes will keep them a good color.

If linen is slightly scorched when ironing, the marks will often disappear if sponged at once with vinegar.

To roll a jelly roll out without cracking, turn out of the pan upon a cloth wrung out of cold water. Then spread with jelly, and, as it is rolled the steam from the wet cloth will prevent the cracking of the roll. Then remove to dry towel.

Burn the dried lemon rinds in the open fireplace. It will give the room a nice fragrance.

Always heat lemons before squeezing, and the result will be double the quantity of juice yielded.

Flies detest the smell of eucalyptus oil. Sprinkle a little over a piece of cloth, then open wide all doors and windows and waving the cloth vigorously, move gradually towards the door. This will banish all flies from the house.

JILL'S OTHER SELF

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Jill" to you, in the informality of the summer vacation; but her full name when the autumn fires do burn and summer ways and days are gone. You didn't know that there was any more to Jill? I mean any "rest" to it. Oh, aye. Jillian it is when she gathers in her free-blowing hair, gets into her town clothes, the new ones—so feminissima, and pulls on her "Eugenie," or her "Scotty," so, oh so, different from last year's open-face bonnets!

Jill it was, but Jillian it is to you now Jack—John in the city clothes, I believe.

That self had wind-blown hair, was indifferent to a shiny nose, had unlined eyebrows and unrouged cheeks. That girl you know shopped in the country grocery store in shorts and sandals, shouted at you from the waves or across the road, could shoulder a man's load of picnic provisions, stood with her feet planted wide like a sailor, and hands, brown hands, on hips. A cocky brown child with no coquetry, no feminine wiles, no dignity, no fear.

But summer has gone, and with it fled that self that prattled so airily to Jack. You should see her in the city, John. She almost disjointed her pretty neck turning it with regret when she left the playground on the "Cape." But the moment the boat docked, or the train roared into the city and turned her out into the station, she went "ELEGANT."

She couldn't wait for that plumed velvet hat; the sleek hair under it; the rouge and lip-red, the penciled brows; the LeLong copy suit with the Sitka Fox collar, the ice-cream-and-cobweb blouse, the Eastern mink jacket over plaid velvet with a Second Empire hat; ALL the beloveds of the civilized, smart (smart on a sma' bit o' siller sometimes,) eager for the feminine and the new, pose-ful, alluring, young lady of October, Nineteen Thirty-one. Meet Jillian, John. THAT was a pretty child to whom a fellow could confide anything of hurt or triumph. THIS is a beautiful girl, and the look of her ties a man's tongue, even while it lights the fire in his heart and mystery begins to play her part.

There are none of us, which is a grand fine thing, no matter how humble mentally we are, who have not at least two selves at our command.

The commonly-believed-to-be butterfly-brained youngster in her "jammers" and her high spirits, has a summer self, and a winter. And they make two different pictures of her on young John's heart.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Madge Realizes That the Boys Are Growing Up

Kitty can arrange flowers so that they are most attractive, but when that task is given her she acquires such a heavy sense of responsibility and so decided an inferiority complex that she spends hours when minutes should suffice. I knew that if I left the flowers with her the room would be in disorder when the boys came up instead of presenting the "welcome home" picture which I wished for my husband's older nephews.

The joyous voices of Junior and Roderick as they raced up to my door solved my problem. They were breathing rapidly but able to talk voluably.

"Mums, you said we could get off punishment when we heard the motor, didn't you?" Junior demanded. "Isn't that Dad now with the boys?"

They were both wriggling in their anxiety to be gone, but I held them for a second.

"Listen," I said impressively. "Don't let Hank and Bill come upstairs until I come down. Tell them I'll be down in just a few minutes, but don't hint a word about this room."

"No, we won't," they chorused, and raced down the stairs, while I hastily put gallardia and coreopsis into a low wide receptacle for the top of the mantel, and the flowing tiger lilies into a basket which I set upon the study table, where it simply "made" the room, as Mary says.

I carefully gathered up the debris of the stalks and leaves, rushed to my bedroom and thrust them into the waste basket, took a look at my mirror, and then hurried down the stairs to the veranda where Dicky and the boys were sitting with Roderick and Junior perched upon the arms of Dicky's chair. They all rose as I came out of the door, and I noted with some secret approbation that Hank and Bill sprang to their feet as a matter of course and in different fashion than they had done at the Easter holidays, the last time I had seen them. Then they had been distinctly "hobbledehoy," but though there was a certain boyish awkwardness about them now, they reflected the training in social amenities which I knew was an unwritten but vital part of their school life at Worcester.

"I kissed them affectionately and they hugged me warmly, if a bit awkwardly.

"Gee, Auntie Madge!" Bill said. "It sure seems good to get home. Camp was wonderful, but this is best of all, eh, Hank?"

"Oh! sure thing," Hank assented quickly, then asked with an odd little air almost of bravado: "Where are the girls, Mary and Marion?"

I bit my lip to conceal a little smile of astonishment. I would have thought nothing of the query if it had not been for his curious hesitation before Marion's name. His odd manner, of course, was not caused by the prospect of meeting his sister Mary, but during the Christmas and Easter vacations both boys had seemed to regard Mary and Marion with the same brotherly indifference, criticism or approval, according to their mood. Was Hank becoming girl-conscious?

"They've gone to Southampton with Uncle Harry and Aunt Lillian," Junior piped. "They're going to buy some new dresses for their visit."

"Their visit?" Both boys looked at me with patent dismay in their faces. "Are they going away?"

"Only for a few days," I hastened to assure them. The Brixtons have invited them to a house party."

"Oh! the Brixtons!" Hank said, almost giving the impression that he had spat the word instead of speaking it. Then he turned to his brother with an expressive shrug.

"Well! I suppose we'd better get the old traps upstairs," he said. "The same room we had, Auntie Madge?"

"No, I'll show you," I said casually, and Dickey, with a stride forward, took Junior and Roderick each by a hand. They were fairly dancing with suppressed excitement.

"Please be quiet, all of you," I said as we started for the stairs. "Grandma Graham and Grandpa Spencer and the baby are all asleep."

"Oh!" said Bill hastily, "How is the baby?" His was the painful perturbation of someone who has "forgotten his manners."

"She's very well, thank you," I said demurely. "You shall see her when she wakes up."

We reached the door of the "surprise" room, and I threw it open hastily with the words: "Here is the room you're going to have, boys."

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

Paint purple eye shadows give brunettes a mysterious and exotic air. They are the latest eyelid finish. Girls with hair that is real gold or plated with peroxide are going in for green smears above their celestial eyes, though some stick to blue as the best bet. Surprising, but the white-haired sisters who have clear complexions and some color in their cheeks are resorting to grey shadows. The result isn't as terrible as it sounds.

When the hands show large veins, keep them out of hot or cold water as much as possible. Hold the hands high in the air now and then. Warts on the hands should be treated with applications of castor oil; they don't like it and, in that respect, show good judgment; nobody does. The old-time mixture of glycerine and rosewater is effective for doing away with cutaneous roughness. And do watch out that you use a bland soap.

The correct powder shade for the average complexion is a rich ivory with a trace of flesh. We hear about green and mauve powders, but somehow they don't quite fill the bill, though mauve is nice on a white skin when hair is cotton-colored and eyes a strong blue. Why green should ever have been compounded, nobody can explain. Varying ivory tones are interesting. S'prising how many they are. Pink casts, blue shades, orange-creams. Everything to satisfy the cash-customers.

How to Keep Well

The Effect of Sunshine on The Teeth and Bones

Dr. Copeland

There is a substance called "ergosterol," which is widely distributed in nature. A supply of it is to be found in the human body, particularly in the skin.

When the surface of the body is exposed to the sun or to other sources of ultra-violet radiation this substance in the skin acts in a mysterious way to produce vitamin D. This vitamin in its turn goes through the body and promotes the deposit of lime in the bones, a process known as "calcification" of the bones. This process is particularly important to give complete and perfect enameling of the teeth.

It is because of this health-giving method of Mother Nature that sun-baths are so frequently recommended for the infant. The expectant mother, too, is advised to indulge in this health-promoting practice.

It is interesting to know that months before the child is born, the calcification process of the body begins. Not only have the bones started to form and grow, but the teeth have begun to take shape. It is during this period that the mother should have an abundant supply of lime, phosphorus and vitamin D. Lack of these three important substances results in imperfect calcification and a weak formation of bones and teeth. Without such lime deposits there are sure to be decayed teeth.

The importance of preventing tooth decay is tremendous. Many constitutional diseases and infections of the body may result from decay in the mouth.

To prevent these evils it is best for every person to consume at least a quart of milk every day of his life. This may be taken either as whole milk or as a beverage. It may be taken in foods, such as cream soup, ice cream and other combinations containing milk.

The growing child should have a careful diet which contains all of these important substances. Make sure that your children are having plenty of milk, eggs and other foods so important for the development of a strong, bony framework and healthy teeth.

CARDS MAKE A'S LOOK LIKE Z'S—NICK

By NICK ALTROCK
Baseball's Funny Man

ST. LOUIS Oct 3 Well folks Wild William Hallahan sure made the A's look like Z's you cannot bludgeon a baseball out of the premises when a small pitcher keeps 'em thigh-high and Hallahan was certainly flirting with their waistlines all afternoon yesterday

At that the heroism should be carved in half and I don't know whether to give Hallahan or Pepper Martin the white meat Pepper who was supposed to have housemaid's knee only stole two bases off Cochrane and then stopped through Mickey's legs for the Cards' second run If Martin ever gets a bum knee there's never going to be a shortage of southpaw pitchers

for the 100-meter dash in the Olympics

It begins to look like the series goat is the pinch-hitter Every time one of them has been up he has whiffed very gallantly Mack and Street could save carfares by just taking along clothing dummies as pinch sluggers We'll the next game is Monday That's one Connie Mack two days to think over his next pitcher and then pick Grove Gabby Street liable to come back with Dearinger The A's admit the Cards have nerves of steel but look at what steel is selling for today

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN

Anything can happen now Didn't Lindy get himself in an airplane crash" If a miracle like that can happen then Grove can be batting out of the box Simmons can be benched for not in a slump and Mickey Cochrane can go through a game without opening his mouth

Personally I don't care what happens as long as they don't bring the series back to St Louis The local beer is swell but if I got to make a 24-hour train jump to get it I would rather hop a train to Montreal and load up on Scotch

Uncle Nick likes world series but that is no reason the shooting last as long as Eugene O'Neill's play So I am going to ask the boys to make it snappy and bury the remains in Shibe Park

If the punctuation of this yarn isn't proper it's because I had to hurry and pack my satchel for the train East It left a couple of hours after the finish of the second game which did not give us experts much time to think out our masterpieces From the way everybody was hurrying back to Philadelphia you would think William Penn was sick

REAL HARDSHIP

If it should turn out to be a long series it would be tough on some of the players who are writing up the games for the papers They might get writers cramp You take Burleigh Grimes for instance who is scribbling pieces for the Fourth Estate Burleigh chews the end of his pencil when he is thinking up words

This turns into sawdust and a long series to write about might dry up his spit

It is also quite a hardship for the boys to keep their mind on the game when they are wondering whether you spell foul with an "F" or a "PH" and other intimate writing problems like that I remember one series almost had to be called off because Babe Ruth ran out of copy paper Well all us authors have their troubles and mine is packing my wardrobe pajamas and refreshment all in my portable typewriter case So I will call this article a day's work and start squeezing my chattels in now

Soldiers Dislike Attitude Of School Masters

CHAPTER XXI.

The principal is pale. He is hesitating whether to enforce discipline or to humor us. But he arrives at neither the one nor the other.

"Mr. Principal," begins Albert Trosske, "we have not come here that you should tell us we did our job well, though unfortunately, as you say, we were not victorious . . . to that—"

The principal winces and with him the whole college of masters. "I must request you, at least in your expressions—" he begins indignantly "" I say; "" and again "" reiterates Albert. "That has been our every third word for years, and it's high time that you knew it—But you don't seem to realize how things stand. We are none of your brave scholars; we are none of your good schoolboys, we are soldiers!"

"But, gentlemen," cries the Old Man, almost imploringly, "there is a misunderstanding—a most painful misunderstanding—"

But he does not finish. He is interrupted by Helmuth Reinersmann, who carried his brother back through a bombardment on the Yser, only to put him down dead at the dressing station.

SPEECHES UNWELCOME

"Killed," he says savagely; "they were not killed for you to make speeches about them. They were our comrades. Enough! Let's have no more wind-bagging about it!"

The Old Man decides to humor us at all costs. We are too many, and Willy stands there too formidably trumpeting before him. And who can say what these undisciplined fellows may not be doing next; they may even produce bombs from their pockets. He beats the air with his arms as an archangel his wings. But no one listens to him.

Then suddenly comes a lull in the tumult. Ludwig Breyer has stepped out to the front. There is silence. "Mr. Principal," says Ludwig in a clear voice, "you have seen the war after your fashion—with flying banners, martial music and with glamour. But you saw it only to the railway station from which we set off. We do not mean to blame you. We, too, thought as you did. But we have seen the other side since then, and against the heroics of 1914 soon wilted to nothing. Yet we went through with it; we went through with it because there was something deeper that held us together, something that only showed up out there a responsibility, perhaps, but at any rate something of which you know nothing and about which there can be no speeches."

Ludwig passed a moment gazing varantly ahead. He passes his hand over his forehead and continues. "We have not come to ask a reckoning—that would be foolish, nobody knew then what was coming. But we do require that you shall not again try the prescribe what we shall think of these things. We want out full of enthusiasm—the name of the Fatherland on our lips—and we have returned in silence, but with the thing, the Fatherland, in our hearts. And now we ask you to be silent too. Have done with fine phrases. They are not fitting. Nor are they fitting to our dead comrades. We saw them die. And the memory of it is still too near for us to abide to hear them talked of as you are talking. They died for more than that."

Now everywhere it is quiet. The principal has his hands clasped together. "But Breyer," he says gently—"I did not mean it so—"

Ludwig has done.

After a while the principal continues. "But tell me then, what is it that you do want?"

NO DESIRE TO STAY

After a moment's silence Westerholt pushes his way to the front of the principal. "Let's hear something practical," says he; "that's what we're here for now. Here we are, 70 soldiers, and we have to go back to school again. What do you propose to do with us? And I may as well tell you at once we know as good as nothing now of all your bookish stuff, and what's more, we've no wish to stay here longer than need be."

The principal checks his displeasure. He explains that as yet he has had no instructions in the matter from the authorities. For the present we must go back to the several classes from which we went out. Then later, of course, we shall see what arrangements can be made.

This is answered with mutterings and laughter.

"Don't you run away with the idea," says Willy indignantly, "that we're going to perch on forms along with kids who never saw the war, and put up our hands nicely whenever we know anything. We're staying together."

We are beginning to see how funny it all is. For years we have been allowed to shoot and stab and kill, and now it is a matter of grave importance whether it was from the second form or from the third form that we went off to do it. In this one they do equations with two unknowns, and in the other with only one. These are the differences that matter here.

LAUGH AT RULES

The principal promises to ask that a special course be granted for soldiers.

"We can't wait for that," says Albert Trosske curtly. "We had better see about it ourselves."

The principal does not reply; he walks to the door in silence.

The masters follow and we traipse out after them. But Willy, for whom it has all gone much too smoothly, first takes the two potted plants from the lecture desk and smashes them onto the floor. "I never could stomach vegetables, anyway," he says viciously. The laurel wreath he plants askew on Westerholt's head. "Make yourself soup out of it—"

We are sitting in council with the returned men from the grammar school.

Westerholt has brought a copy of the old school regulations and is reading aloud from it. Progress is slow, for almost every paragraph is received with roars of laughter. We can hardly believe that such rules once applied to us.

Westerholt is particularly amused to discover that before the war we were not allowed to be on the streets after 9 o'clock at night without permission of a form master. But Willy deals with him. "Don't you be too fresh, Alwin," he shouts across at him. "You've flouted your form master worse than any of us—what with saying you were killed, and getting yourself a funeral oration off the principal, and him saying you were a hero and a model scholar! And then after that you have the cheek to come back alive! Nice predicament you've landed the Old Man in! Now he'll have to take back all the credit he gave to your corpse—for if I know anything, you're just as rotten in algebra and composition as ever you were."

We elect a students' council, for, though our schoolmasters may do, perhaps, to pump a few facts into us for examination purposes, we are certainly not going to let them govern us any more. For ourselves we appoint as representatives Ludwig Breyer, Helmuth Reinersmann and Albert Trosske, for the Grammar School, George Rahe and Karl Broger.

Then we settle on three delegates to start next morning for the provincial authorities and the ministry, to set out our demands regarding the syllabus and the examination. For this purpose we choose Willy, Westerholt and Albert. Ludwig cannot go, as he is still not well enough. The three are then duly equipped with passes and free railway vouchers, of which we have whole blocks in hand. And we have, of course, plenty of lieutenants and Soldiers' Councillors to countersign them.

Helmuth Reinersmann looks to it that the delegation shall have the appropriate outward appearance also. He requires Willy to leave at home the new outfit that he pinched from the quartermaster and to put on for the journey a soiled and tattered one instead.

"But why?" asks Willy, disappointed.

"That will tell with the penpushers more than a hundred good reasons," explains Helmuth.

ABLE SOLDIERS

Willy gives way and Helmuth now turns his attention to Alwin Westerholt. He seems to him to appear too naked, so Ludwig Breyer's decoration is pinned on his chest. "Your arguments will sound much more convincing to an undersecretary that way," adds Helmuth.

In Albert's case this is not necessary; he has enough medals to show on his own account. At length the three are satisfactorily furnished and Helmuth surveys his handiwork. "Superb!" says he. "Now for it!" And show the bloody turnip eaters for once what a real front-line man-eater looks like."

The smoke of pipes and cigars fills the room. Desires, thoughts, ambitions in seething confusion. Heaven only knows what will come of them. A hundred young soldiers, 18 lieutenants, 30 warrant officers and noncoms, all sitting here, wanting to start to live. And many of them could take a company under fire across No Man's Land with hardly a casualty. There is not one who would hesitate for an instant to do the right thing when the cry "They are coming!" was yelled down into his dugout.

But for peace? Are we suitable? Are we fit now for anything but soldiering?

DAILY SHORT STORY

Gentle-Woman

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Laundress Rewarded for Her Kindness to Woman

Mrs. Quincy rather pitied herself.

Here she was, slaving away on a paper which she was to read at the next meeting of the Women's Club. The subject was, "Right Living Endures."

She was seated in the coolness of an extremely wide veranda of her handsome home. Below her was a small Italian garden with flowers, shrubs and a fountain playing.

A broad drive curved around to her four-car garage. A warm red brick wall, herring bone pattern, curved to the front and side doors. Inside, two servants were working quietly.

The Springville Women's Club boasted of 40 members. It boasted even more of the fact that thrice 40 other Springville ladies were eager to join, but the club was quite "select." Only the real social element of the midget city was to be represented in this club.

Mrs. Quincy's husband controlled the immense Springville Foundries, giving employment to half of the population. Therefore, Mrs. Quincy held herself to be quite the social leader in the place. She had been thinking seriously, of late, of adding a "de" and another "e" to her name, but she had read somewhere that the great De Quincey was, himself, an eater of opium, so she decided to allow her name to remain unchanged.

Mrs. Quincy came to the page of her rough draft that had a penciled query on it. She scowled at this. She had read part of her rough draft of the paper to her husband the evening before. When she came to her line:

"Clean living has endured since time was," the matter-of-fact Mr. Quincy had chuckled and remarked, "So has the oldest profession."

WOMAN ANNOYED

Now Mrs. Quincy was endeavoring to put the idea into a different form.

At this moment there fell upon her ears a doleful sound:

"Sssseeeeeak—squeeeeeak!"

Mrs. Quincy frowned, lay down her fountain pen and glanced down the winding brick walk. She sighed, but her frown disappeared. Mrs. Whitman was delivering her laundry and some of it Mrs. Quincy needed for that evening.

The doleful squeaking came from the ungreased wheels of a wornout child's cart. The Widow Whitman regularly hauled her laundry to deliver in this little old child's cart.

"Bring it up here," Mrs. Quincy said.

Mrs. Whitman lifted the bundle carefully and brought it up to the wide veranda. Mrs. Quincy had her open it. She examined every piece. Not a wrinkle in any of the ironing of the fine fabrics. Mrs. Quincy had a call button on the veranda rail and she used it. Her upstairs maid came out obediently in black dress and white starched collar, cuffs and apron.

MAKES REPORT

"Check this up with my list, Della," Mrs. Quincy ordered, "and bring my purse."

Mrs. Quincy prided herself on her ability to keep track of everything.

The thought came to her that here was an example—Mrs. Whitman preferred to live the right life, she preferred it so greatly that she took in washing. Then Mrs. Quincy had another thought—taking in washing wasn't much of a reward for living the right sort of life, nor much of an inducement. She couldn't use that idea in her paper.

Della came out and reported that all of the pieces were intact, according to the list.

"How much?" Mrs. Quincy asked.

"Three-eighty, Mrs. Quincy."

"Goodness," Mrs. Quincy said, but she fished around for dollar bills among the twenties in her purse.

"I suppose you make a lot of money?" Mrs. Quincy asked.

"I pay my bills and put aside a dollar or so every week so I may have a Christian burial and perhaps enough to pay my way into an Old Ladies' Home, Mrs. Quincy."

"Very worthy of you. I imagine that I am about your best customer."

"Well — no — you and Mrs. Truxton are about the same, between three and four dollars, but Mrs. Blake, she pays me between eight and nine every week."

"Mrs. Blake? Mrs. Blake? What Mrs. Blake?"

"She lives in Water street, in the big yellow house with the iron deer in the yard."

"You mean — you mean — Poppy?"

Mrs. Quincy whispered the word "Poppy" as though it were obscene.

"Some call her that, I suppose. I've heard of it. Her name, so far's I ever knew, is Mrs. Blake."

MRS. QUINCY EXPLAINS

"But look here, Mrs. Whitman, you are no fool. You are an upright, God-fearing woman—"

"And a hard working woman, too," Mrs. Whitman put in.

"And you know about this woman they call Poppy."

"I don't know a thing."

"You've heard."

"I've heard all sorts of things about almost everyone."

"I believe you are trying to protect that creature — I am amazed at you, Mrs. Whitman."

"I'm trying to mind my own affairs."

"You will find that if you are loyal to we gentle-women you will be happier, you will have nothing to be ashamed of."

"Gentle-women?"

"Yes, don't you understand?"

"Most women are gentle—it's the men who fight."

Mrs. Quincy sighed.

"My dear, a gentle-woman is one who is well bred, well born, well-behaved."

"Oh. Well, I was well born, my parents were married, and I was well bred, not to tell lies or do wrong, Mrs. Quincy."

Mrs. Quincy flushed a little but managed to restrain herself.

"You don't quite understand—the gentle-women are the ladies I am friendly with, the members of our Women's Club, the society set."

"If you've got to be a society woman to be a gentle-woman," Mrs. Whitman spoke drearily, "then I guess I ain't one."

"Of course not, my dear woman. But what I am getting at is that you shouldn't do work for such a depraved, ungodly, wicked person as this woman they call Poppy."

"Her money is good—good as anybody's, and she doesn't make me lug her laundry back and forth and she pays me well and never keeps account of the pieces to see if I stole anything."

"But it is wicked money, can't you understand?"

"Well, my goodness, your husband's foundry makes all the metal parts for them big breweries that break the law, and makes parts for stills that are against the law and they make poison liquor in them and—"

"That will do, Mrs. Whitman. I shall find another laundress—one who knows how to treat a gentle-woman."

Mrs. Whitman went her way with her creaking cart. She wasn't downcast. She could always get washings to do.

For another year she continued to do washing for the woman called "Poppy," and then this woman died.

Mrs. Whitman was shocked and saddened. She had not seen the woman called Poppy more than a dozen times in five years, but Poppy had paid her a little extra always, and sent and got the laundry.

Only the undertaker and the minister called at the big yellow house with the iron deer on the lawn.

Mrs. Whitman was there ahead of the cortege which had consisted of three cars — the hearse, the car for the minister and undertaker and another for the four women who had dwelt in Poppy's house.

Not a flower in sight.

Then Mrs. Whitman came forward as they were leaving.

She placed on the grave, with care, in a two-quart preserve jar, a great bouquet of white roses.

A strange man whispered to a young man who came down and spoke to Mrs. Whitman.

"A relative?" he asked.

"No sir—I did her washing, she always paid me well and never expected me to tote the washing back and forth."

The older man had come forward to listen.

"Did you know about her?" he asked, quietly.

INHERITS ESTATE

"She's dead — and she was good to me," Mrs. Whitman answered.

"Why the white roses, madam?"

Mrs. Whitman looked at the man for a moment.

"Isn't it about time the poor soul had white roses?" she asked, gently.

The enderly man turned away and whispered to the young man who came back and took Mrs. Whitman's name and address. They went away together, the famous and wealthy man who had been forced, years before, to divorce this woman who came to be known as "Poppy." No one in the place knew that this famous and wealthy man of the big city was once the husband of "Poppy."

But soon after this the Springville paper announced the following:

"Mrs. Clara Whitman, of River street, for many years a hard-working laundress, has received from some source which her lawyers will not divulge the sum of $100,000. The only statement that Judge Gorman, Mrs. Whitman's lawyer, will make, is that the money came to her because she is a gentle-woman."

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
It Is a City of Churches as Well as of Mills

Election Fraud Report

Workable Voting Machines Would Eliminate Some Evils—Brief Comment on Local News.

The Bar Association's election fraud committee confirms in its report the general impression that thousands of illegal votes were cast in the primary. Its recommendations that derelict officials be prosecuted and that corrective legislation be enacted should stimulate the courts and the Legislature. Workable voting machines would eliminate many of the evils.

Secretary Lamont of the Department of Commerce, said yesterday there was little likelihood that the federal government would regulate the bituminous coal industry, as proposed by J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. It remains then for the operators to help themselves. Some of them have yet to learn there cannot be co-operation without sacrifice.

The unemployed in a number of Western Pennsylvania communities will be better off this winter than many unfortunates elsewhere because of our coal resources. Some operators are offering coal free to any who will mine it. A thick vein was recently uncovered in opening a new street in Munhall and the needy in that vicinity have already removed about 100 tons.

There are a good many things the poor can do to help themselves, but it is not to be forgotten that there are numerous unfortunates who will starve unless they receive aid. The Salvation Army is taking care of some of them in its 17 local institutions. It needs $112,500 to carry on during the next year. It is to be hoped Pittsburghers will continue to support the work.

Another social service agency which is doing splendid work is the Urban League. It works among Negroes, and has a fine job to its credit in the recent improvement of the appearance of a block on Wandless street. Rotten fences and tumbledown garages are being razed, rubbish removed, houses painted and grass, vines and flowers planted.

It's an ill wind that blows no good. The State Sanitary Water Board reports that inactivity of some of the local coal mines has reduced the acid drainage from the mines into the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and thus has proved beneficial to the Pittsburgh public water supply. But it is to be hoped the stream pollution problem can be solved without industrial inactivity.

A Supreme Court case calls attention to the fact that the State Council of Education has disapproved the proposed annexation of parts of Baldwin Township. Recently the city Board of Education spoke deprecatingly of the annexation of contiguous areas with poor schools. If these things mean that the growth of Pittsburgh by accretion may be interrupted, they are another argument for the Metropolitan Plan.

The awarding of plaques and certificates to scores of Pittsburgh plants which achieved good records in the accident prevention contest conducted under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council is a reminder that the organized industrial safety movement started here. We have accomplished wonders in the mills and mines and on the railroads. But the highways are still unsafe.

Is your home safe? The principal danger to dwelling houses lies in fire. Next week is to be observed as Fire Prevention Week. The best way for most persons to observe it is to look over their premises and see if there are trash heaps or other combustibles that should be removed. The question of fire insurance also calls for consideration.

Life insurance as well as fire insurance is a necessity if the home is to be adequately protected. Representatives of 138 insurance companies will hold a convention in Pittsburgh next week. They will be interested to know that the Polk canvass showed 89 per cent of Pittsburgh district families carry insurance, averaging $4,692 per family.

Especially worthy of consideration in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow is the article by Benito Mussolini, premier of Italy, who writes that his country will adhere rigidly to the gold standard. For those who like other interesting reading there are some very entertaining pages in the American Weekly Magazine Section.

The Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will show in full color two charming landscapes and a portrait of Helen Twelvetrees, the actress. Some quaint old views of Pittsburgh scenes will be presented in the "Remember?" department. And you will find the prize-winning pictures in the amateur photograph contest interesting.

League Court Partiality

Cincinnati Paper Says the United States Should Join Tribunal to Improve It.

Because the League Court made a bad decision in the Austro-German customs union case, the United States should hurry into the Court in the slim prospects of improving the tribunal.

This is the argument of the Cincinnati Enquirer. At the same time, however, the Enquirer advances reasons AGAINST UNITED STATES MEMBERSHIP. Its editorial on the League Court decision said:

"Unmistakably, there is evidence here of judges voting in terms of the interests of their own nations . . .

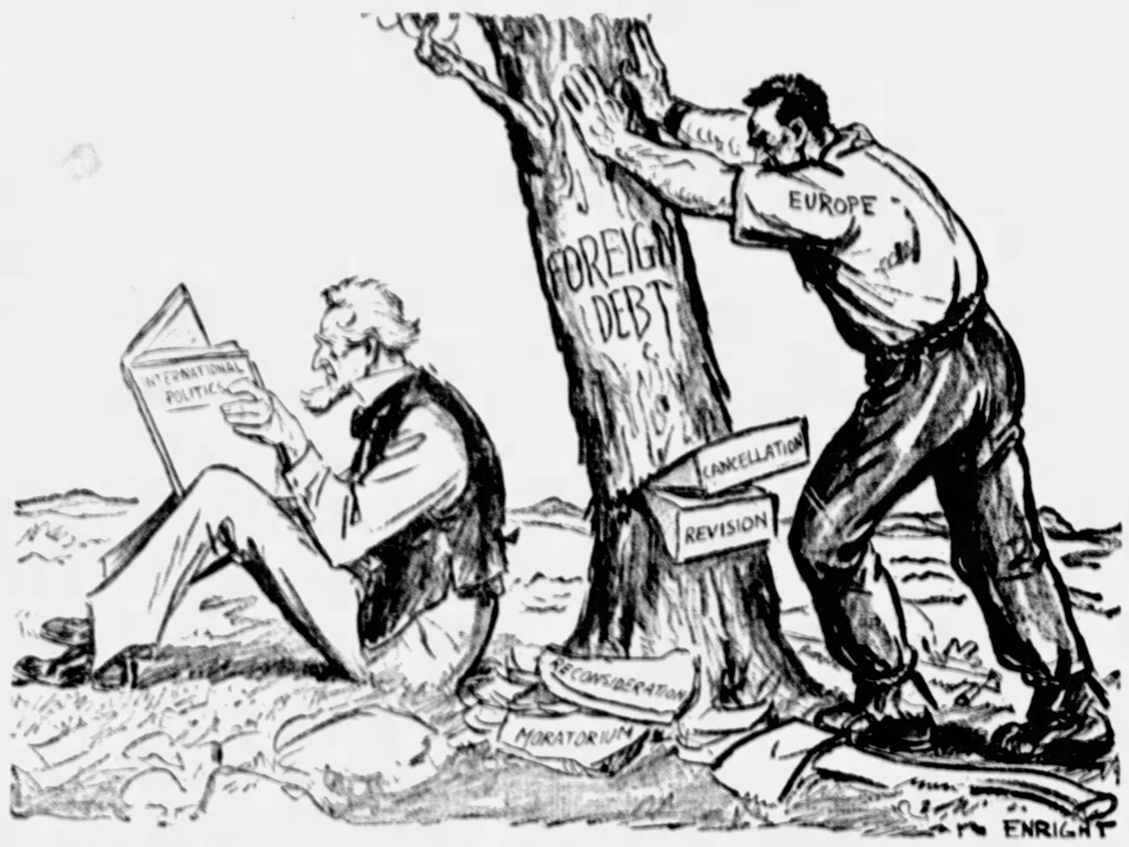
"This cannot fail to be something of a blow to the prestige of the World Court. But assuming that approximate justice is better than hard-fisted national force, and that an international court is desirable, the need is clearly for active American participation. This at least would lend a greater impartiality to the court and a greater weight to its decisions."

The Enquirer's idea is that the United States would protect the League Court's "independence from outside pressures."

But what becomes of the INDEPENDENCE OF THE UNITED STATES under the pressure of League Court politics?

The "Fall" Guy

(Copyright, 1931.)



Uncle Sam is the Fall Guy in this woodland scene. The lumberjack is just as capable as those we have out West, who can "fall" a tree in any direction merely by notching it capably. But the lumberjack doesn't like his creditor, and is taking no chances—and Uncle Sam will be HURT unless he gets out of the picture in a hurry.

Bunkers on the Love-Course

Never call a lost love back—because Love, like a naughty child, never comes when you call it!

Some people step back into life after a divorce just as calmly and naturally as though they had merely been for a week-end in the country.

The girl a man marries is not the one who goes after his heart—but the one who goes to his head. In love, a man loses his head first, then his equilibrium, then his caution, and finally his liberty.

Life's Dreamers: The woman who is going to "bant off 50 pounds," the financier who is going to retire and start a chicken farm, the nervous wreck who is going to give up smoking—between the last dose of medicine and the last breath.

If a man can manage to acquire a reputation for being "odd," he can do all kinds of selfish and impudent things, and still be adored by feminine fools who secretly enjoy being bullied.

When a rich woman and her husband have words over money, she usually gets all the words, while he gets the money.

The acme of loneliness is not solitude, but the sort of marriage which affords company without companionship.

Perhaps the modern woman reasons that husbands are like cocktails. If you never take the first, you'll never take the second. But, if you take one, somehow, you always want another—and another—and another—

Telling a girl that you are marriage-proof and that she can never be anything but a beautiful episode in your life, is practically burning your bridges before you.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Name of Love

Men have taken the name of love in vain,
As a moon-like glow that can wax and wane;
They have lost the knowledge that love must be Unchanged, through time and eternity.
Though life is merciful, kind and pure,
As quick in forgiveness as strong to endure,
They have bargained for terms and striven to prove
The right to reason and barter in love.

But love through the ages is still the same,
Not the flower of a day or a shining name.
For when love the door of a life walks through
That life in an instant is shaped anew;
The things that were sordid and mean depart
And a glamour glows in the happy heart;
Ah, love means pity and power and pain,
And it enters into no life in vain!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Wherever one goes in New York the main topic is the New Era. So far as I can gather, it is a manifestation of a change in civilization, although we used to have a nickel-plated anthracite stove bearing the same name. Anyway, old eras seem played out.

Personally I have never been much of an era boy although my uncle was. Erysipelas I think he called it and was he a sight! Now and then I have gone in a little for epochs but they became embarrassing. Every time I'd speak of an epoch folks thought I was hiccupping.

For instance, I was at a dinner at Ted Cook's one evening and when conversation slowed up I remarked brightly: "I'm mighty happy we are all living in this epoch." A butler hurried toward me with a glass of water and told me to hold my breath and take ten sips.

If you don't believe it sounds like a hiccup say epoch real fast. Didn't I tell you? Acting a fool this way I've taken on a real set of hiccups. Whenever the typewriter spells out "hrdlicka" that means I have just let go of a rousing bur-burp.

If I get the hiccups I sit around stiff as a poker—hrdlicka—fearing someone is going to pop out from somewhere and frighten me. As a matter of fact that—hrdlicka—is a dangerous thing to do. They tell me that many stutterers are frightened hiccupers.

Pu-pup-pup-people—for heaven sakes what's going on?—who hiccup should never—hrdlicka—be excited. I got to get away from goofy stuff like this or I'll be catching at my thumbs. What I started out to write about in the first place was the New Era.

One of the strange phenomena of writing is the sudden way it tangos off into a tangent. Who would think a piece that started out to discuss a phase of our national life would all at once take up such silly topics as hiccups and stuttering? I'm going to start afresh.

The New Era, as I understand it, means that most of us have been doing everything wrong and will now begin all over again, from scratch. In a way this column today is a symbol of the New Era. Up until this paragraph it was all muddled and so I began all over again and now look! Did you ever see anything skim along so smoothly? I am writing this with practically no effort whatever. Just to show you how easy it is, I am holding one foot up off the floor. Where I put in a few dots that will mean I got up and walked around my chair . . . And here I am back again, pecking along and clacking out a column as naturally and as gracefully as anything.

I remember back in the old era when I'd squat before my machine for hours tugging at an ear lobe, gazing dejectedly out the window, picking up doodads on my desk and putting them down again, aimlessly tapping at the shift key and penciling hieroglyphics on pads. But all that is in the past. The New Era dawns and finds me prepared. Never can it be honestly said I have failed in my era work. When the test came I was A-1.

* * *

It seems no longer than yesterday that I sat at my desk a forlorn and crumpled bit of humanity, broken on life's wheel. Just a relic of the old era. A timid knock came at the door. "Come in!" I whimpered, for after living through about four eras your voice begins to quiver. It was old Uncle Enoch, my black body servant. "Marsta," he said, "it'll soon be here. The way they're yelling it must be at Fifty-fourth street." I knew what it was and never flinched. I held to my desk and with Uncle Enoch's assistance, rose to my feet and placed a trembling hand to my forehead in attitude of salute. It was like that—as any of the news reel pictures will show—I greeted the New Era.

Here and there I run across a few of the poor old era gang. They are still hugging their delusions and wondering what it is all about. Two I met this morning didn't know how many Spanish pesetas make a dollar. In fact one of them didn't even know the peseta had fallen. It's being up on things like that that makes us snappy New Era boys the cards we are today.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I know a man who prides himself on making the most sensible decisions. He always weighs and ponders every problem which presents itself, looks at every side of the question, considers all the risks and obstacles involved.

Now, you'd think that decisions made as carefully as that would succeed, wouldn't you? But they don't. In spite of all these elaborate precautions, this man never seems to get anywhere. Someone is always outsmarting him—grabbing off the prizes while he pauses to "stop, look and listen."

On the other hand, I know a woman who makes the most outlandish decisions. She never seems to do any serious thinking, never stops to consider consequences, just barges in, on impulse, regardless of risk. Wouldn't you think she'd come to grief? But she doesn't! For some amazing reason, almost everything she tackles succeeds. She takes the craziest chances, does the most unprecedented things—and gets by with them! Everyone calls it "Marion's luck."

For a long time I couldn't understand this mystery. It irritated me. Why should such a scatterbrained person have "luck" like that while careful, serious people failed? It was against all the rules . . . terribly unfair. But gradually I began to understand.

It wasn't just "fool's luck"—just "happenstance." There was a sound reason why this reckless woman's plans succeeded and the careful man's failed. Her decisions might seem idiotic and his might seem wise—but that wasn't the point. The decision in itself mattered little. IT WAS THE FEELING BEHIND THE DECISION THAT MATTERED.

What feeling lay behind the man's decisions? Prudence. But prudence is only a fancy name for fear. That man made his decisions in fear. His mind was filled with thoughts of failure as well as thoughts of success. When he started to act, that thought of failure unconsciously cramped his style. He couldn't proceed with 100 per cent force and enthusiasm. He was always making inner reservations—keeping an eye out for trouble—questioning the wisdom of his own act. He was already half licked—FOR HE HAD ACKNOWLEDGED THAT HE COULD BE LICKED. There was nothing mysterious about his failure. He was like a man trying to dig a ditch with one hand tied behind him. Half of his fighting force was tied by fear.

The woman has no such handicap. She refuses to consider the possibility of failure. She knows, of course, that there are as many arguments AGAINST doing the thing she contemplates as there are arguments FOR doing it. But what good will it do her to consider those arguments? It will only waste her time and chill her ardour. If she is going to succeed, she needs to have perfect confidence in her own power and in the thing she is about to do. And so she puts prudence aside . . . won't stop, look and listen" . . . rushes ahead. ON FIRE WITH FAITH.

Her success is no more mysterious than the man's failure. She digs her ditch with BOTH her hands and all her heart. Her decision was reckless—the man's decision was wise. But she backed her decision with FAITH and the man backed his with FEAR . . . AND FAITH WON.

I've learned a lot about living by watching those two people. They are not exceptions. The same thing always works—

Why do the wicked so often flourish and the good so frequently get it in the neck? Because the wicked HAVE FAITH IN WHAT THEY'RE DOING and the good are just acting nice and trying to keep out of trouble.

Why does youth so often win where cautious old age fails? Because youth has FAITH and age has learned to FEAR. . . . . .

Remember that old saying—"Fools rush in where angels fear to tread?" I thought that a wise saying once. I don't any more. The longer I live, the more I'm convinced that THE FOOLS KNOW THEIR STUFF AND THE ANGELS MISS A LOT.

Cutting Wages

What It Means.

YOU have heard too much already about cutting wages, and, unfortunately, you will hear more.

Solemn businessmen will tell you "workingmen must bear their share of the general deflation.

"Stock prices are cut, dividends are cut, or omitted entirely. The workman must bear his share of the grief."

Nice words, but inaccurate, as shown by W. R. Hearst in an article published in all of his newspapers.

In that article Mr. Hearst said:

Several of the greatest corporations in the United States have cut the salaries of their employes 10 per cent, and by so doing have contributed their utmost toward the aggravation of the depression and the accentuation of the injustice already inflicted upon the wage earners of the country and the elements dependent on the welfare of these workers.

The immediate cause for this cut in wages to workers is the present difficulty that the corporations have in paying dividends on their stock, but the actual and elemental cause is the issuance by these corporations of more stock than they are capable of paying dividends on.

It may be taken as axiomatic that if corporations issue stock to the limit of their capacity to pay dividends upon in good times, they will not be able to pay dividends upon it in bad times.

Periods of inflation and depression alternate and it is obvious that if you capitalize to the utmost on the crest of the wave of prosperity you will have to pass dividends on this watered stock in the trough of the wave of depression.

IMPORTANT to the public, and particularly to workers, is a clear understanding of the "alternating inflation and depression" which Mr. Hearst puts in these words.

When a workingman has a fairly good position, with reasonably good wages, with times prosperous, he remains ONE SINGLE workingman getting one workingman's wage.

Not so with the stock of a big corporation.

When a corporation that has been making 5 per cent on its stock, finds that it is making 10 per cent or 20 per cent; it is not content to keep the same number of shares, and go back to the 5 per cent, when conditions change.

The number of shares of stock is multiplied by two, by four, or perhaps by fifty.

THE sudden profits of the period of "inflation" make it possible to pay 5 per cent on the shamefully increased stock issue. Then when depression comes and the company can no longer earn dividends on its inflated number of shares, those that issue the stock calmly say, "We must reduce wages. We are compelled to take a reduction in dividends on our stock, and surely the workman should be content to take a reduction in his wages."

It is as though the workman in good times should suddenly multiply himself by two, or four, or ten, put his name on the payroll in a dozen places, and insist that the employer continue paying him a dozen salaries, not only in times of inflation, but in times of depression also.

IN other words, boom times increase profits. Increased profits promote speculation, reckless gambling, prices rise, new shares of stock are issued, not merely in hundreds of thousands and millions, but in TENS OF MILLIONS OF NEW SHARES, even exceeding in a single instance more than 50,000,000 shares.

The boom passes, depression follows the inflation, stock gambling and stock watering.

Tens of millions of new shares that have been created no longer pay dividends as they did in the inflation. The employing corporation says to its workers, "You see, we are suffering. We have actually been compelled to reduce our dividends. Some of us have been obliged to discontinue them entirely. Surely you will not complain if we find it necessary to reduce your wages in order to enable us to resume dividends or restore full dividends."

THAT is the situation in wage cutting based on depression.

While the inflation boom lasts the workman gets his one day's wage and no more. He can't have a dozen children overnight and put them on the payroll, without their doing any work, and collecting their money.

But the head of a corporation can create new shares, which are his financial "children," not a dozen or a thousand or a million, but tens of millions. He puts them on the payroll. He says that the industry and the boom must pay dividends on them, those dividends being the corporation wages.

And then he wants the workman when depression comes to accept a reduction in wages, in order that the newly created, overcapitalized stock may continue to earn, in depression, as it did in inflation.

The workers of the United States will not accept that interpretation of right and wrong.

ETHYLENE

By Archibald Henderson

The gas, which goes by the name of ethylene, is little known, comparatively speaking, to the public. And yet it is said to be the safest and most effective anaesthetic ever perfected. Like ether it is inflammable; and there is always present, of course, the danger in handling by careless operatives. It has now been in use, as a substitute for ether and laughing gas, for about eight years; and some 500,000 patients have been subjected to its effects. Only three patients have died through accidents resulting from its use. These figures are given by Mayer and Howe in Steps in the Dark.

The properties of ethylene, formerly regarded as a dangerous gas without any valuable therapeutic properties as an anaesthetic, were studied over a long period of years by Prof. Arno B. Luckhardt, physiologist at the University of Chicago, and his student assistant, J. L. Carter—as related by Mayer and Howe in Steps in the Dark. These two and a bontanist, Dr. William Crocker, were one day discussing the curious effect of ethylene gas in putting carnations to sleep. Some gas escaping in a greenhouse caused the carnations to fold up their leaves; and once folded up, the carnations would not open again. Crocker, the botanist, found that when he subjected the carnations to an ethylene sprayed atmosphere, one part of ethylene to two million parts of air, instant death of the carnations resulted.

Ethylene was shown to be more poisonous than carbon monoxide, which was hitherto supposed to be the most fatal element in gas asphyxiation. Luckhardt tried ethylene on frogs, but did not achieve satisfactory results—as the frog is a cold-blooded animal. So he experimented next with rats, which like men and other mammals, are warm-blooded animals. He tried various solutions of ethylene until he got up to an atmosphere containing 80 per cent ethylene. Rats placed in fruit jars filled with this atmosphere "passed out" and seemed to be dead. In a few minutes, however, the "corpses" came to life and frisked about as gaily as before the experiment. After repeated experiments with rats, he was able to prove that he had been unable to prove that ethylene was a poison fatal to animals, notably rats. Experiments were tried on other animals—dogs, cats, and guinea pigs, with the same result. The animals "passed out" under the anaesthetic, but quickly revived and were, apparently, none the worse for the experiment.

Finally, Luckhardt and Carter ventured to try the experiment on each other. First Carter "went under;" but after the gas was stopped and the mask removed, he quickly returned to consciousness, entirely unharmed. The same result was accomplished with Luckhardt. They even tried the experiment on Dr. Anton Julius Carlson, head of the department of physiology at the University of Chicago. Clinical demonstration finished the work.
